Republicans Gain Most Of Gettysburg Offices; 2,500 Votes Are Cast

Indulging in the same ruthless ticket splitting that was characteristic of Tuesday's vote in most sections of the county, about 2,500 Gettysburg voters selected a mixed delegation of six borough councilmen, two republican school directors, a republican justice of the peace and a high constable from the same party.

Although the republicans won all of the town-wide local contests, third ward democrats re-elected Councilmen Samuel D. Weikert and H. M. Oyer and defeated Harold H. Reuning and Edgar P. Hamilton, the republicans.

The vote was:

Weikert	379
Oyer	351
Reuning	321
Hamilton	286

In the second ward Ray M. Hoffman, now president of the borough council and nominee of both parties for re-election, received a total of 569 votes, 248 of them from republicans. Charles Sterner, the second republican nominee, was elected as the ward's other representative for the next four years with a vote of 439, defeating Theodore V. Kimpke, democrat, who is serving an appointive term on council now. He took the place of the late William F. Weaver.

No First Ward Contest

There was no contest in the first ward where William E. Biddle, a former councilman, received a complimentary vote from 808 residents of the ward, 357 of them republicans. His running mate, Wilbur J. Stallsmith, a former burgess, garnered 946 votes. Each one had been nominated by both parties. Stallsmith was given 411 republican and 535 democratic votes.

In the school board contest Charles S. Black, incumbent, was re-elected and led the field. His republican running mate, Edgar C. Moser, also was nominated for a six-year term. W. E. Roth, democrat, trailed Moser by 30 votes.

The vote follows by districts:

	Roth	Black	Moser
1 W., 1 P.	237	344	245
1 W., 2 P.	297	398	320
2 W.	350	463	369
3 W.	385	389	345

Total 1,249 1,585 1,279

Robert P. Snyder carried three of the town's four voting districts to win election as justice of the peace. He defeated Calvin D. "Dan" Stallsmith, a democrat, by a vote of 1,300 to 1,106. Mr. Stallsmith carried his home district, the second precinct of the first ward.

The vote follows:

	Stallsmith	Snyder
1 W., 1 P.	196	283
1 W., 2 P.	276	259
2 W.	300	387
3 W.	334	371

Total 1,106 1,300

Victor A. "Swift" Palmer was elected high constable of Gettysburg by defeating John E. Sentz by a vote of 1,251 to 1,186. Palmer, a republican won three of the four districts in the town, losing the second ward by a margin of nearly 100 votes. He took comfortable leads in the three other divisions of the borough.

They voted this way:

	Sentz	Palmer
1 W., 1 P.	181	289
1 W., 2 P.	269	321
2 W.	394	289
3 W.	342	352

Total 1,186 1,251

S. Richard Eisenhart, a republican who was unopposed on either ticket, was re-elected as a borough auditor for a six-year term by a complimentary vote of 1,693.

There were no ward contests for constable. In the first ward Glenn Guise received 1,041 votes; Park Noel 629 votes in the second and Horace L. Bender, 448 in the third ward.

Precinct Contests

Election board contests had attracted special interest in several of the local precincts.

In the first precinct of the first ward Sara Wilson Doll, a republican, defeated Lester Oyer, democrat, for judge of elections by a vote of 270 to 207. In the same precinct Pauline Weikert Rodgers, republican, was named majority inspector with a vote of 308 over C. C. Bream, democrat, who polled 171 votes and will serve as the minority inspector.

In the second precinct of that ward John Dotterer, a democrat, defeated Clyde Berger, republican, for the post of judge of elections by a count of 327 to 265. Carl Oyer, republican, gathered 316 votes to become majority inspector while Rue

SOCIETY PLANS PEACE DRAMA

A peace play, "Brothers," by Dorothy Clark Wilson, will be presented by the Senior Christian Endeavor society at Trinity Lutheran church, Arendtsville, Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the church school room.

The story concerns Bertram's brothers who go away to war, "Jim" to die, and "Alan" to come back. After a brief display of emotion, "Alan" forgets all the rest. "Bertram," however, remembers and 10 years later sacrifices a brilliant business career to the cause of peace.

The cast follows: "Bertram," the boy, Charles Lady; "Bertram," the man, Mack Raffensperger; "Helen Blake," his mother, Jane Allison; "Dr. John Blake," his father, Robert Carey; "Alan," his older brother, Bruce Raffensperger; "Marjorie," his sister, Pauline Lupp; "Jim Overton," Alan's chum, Earl Stum; "Uncle Peter," Elaine Bushey, Jr., and the "Hon. Cecil Duxbury," Wilmer Krouse.

The play is being directed by the Rev. George H. Berkheimer. Mrs. Berkheimer is in charge of the music.

The performance is open to the public. A silver offering will be lifted.

Vote Tabulation Appears on Page 6

The unofficial tabulation of the Adams county vote for state and county offices is published on page six. On the same page appears a listing of the successful candidates in the boroughs and townships as compiled from the early returns.

There were about 700 names on the ballots for district offices. From this number approximately 150 republicans and 100 democrats were elected to office.

NINTH S. OF U. V. BANQUET TO BE HELD ON NOV. 18

The ninth annual Post Commanders' and Past Presidents' banquet of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil war will be held in the Hotel Gettysburg on Saturday, November 18, at 6:30 p. m.

The banquet is held each year on a date as close as possible to November 19, the day Abraham Lincoln dedicated the National cemetery here in 1863.

The speaker for the occasion will be Doctor Ronalds, of Washington, D. C. He is chief historian for the National Park service in the Department of Interior. Other parts of the program will be announced next week.

Each year the banquet attracts a large number of persons from the south-central section of Pennsylvania. Many come from cities as far distant as Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Wilkes-Barre and Johnstown.

The committee that is making arrangements for the affair follows:

E. F. Strausbaugh, chairman; Mrs. E. F. Strausbaugh, secretary, and Mrs. Lulu Miller, all of Gettysburg, and John H. Runkle, of Harrisburg.

E. H. Singmaster, Jr., Dies in Germantown

Edmund Hoopes Singmaster, Jr., 28 years old, died today in the Germantown hospital from acute leukemia after an illness of three weeks.

He was a graduate of George school and was a former student at Duke university. He had been in business in Wilmington, Delaware.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Ellen Rue, and infant son, John Edmund; his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund H. Singmaster and one brother, Lawrence.

He was a grandson of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Singmaster, and Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Diehl. He was a nephew of Paul Singmaster and Mrs. E. S. Lewars, both of Gettysburg.

Funeral services will be held from the Bair funeral home in Germantown at 2 o'clock on Friday afternoon.

Third grade—Mrs. Lloyd R. Hartman.

Fourth grade—The Rev. Eugene B. Umberger.

Fifth grade—Mrs. G. Robert Thompson.

Sixth grade—The Rev. Dr. Ralph D. Heim.

Seventh grade—Mrs. Earl J. Bowman.

Eighth grade—The Rev. Spencer W. August.

The school will meet each Tuesday that the local public schools are in session until the last Tuesday in March.

Cubs Plan Meeting

For Friday Evening

The Cub pack of the St. James Lutheran church will meet in the dining room of the church on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Ray Zoner, Boy Scout executive for the York-Adams area, will be present. He will give a talk.

The Cubs will display their handicraft and they will offer a musical program.

The parents and friends of the Cubs are urged to attend the meeting. A large turnout is expected.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Ziegler, Springs avenue, announce the birth of a son at the Warner hospital Tuesday evening.

A daughter was born at the hospital this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Glenn M. Fair, Bendersville.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Simpson, Gettysburg R. 5, announce the birth of a daughter at the hospital this morning.

KIN INJURED IN FRONT OF CRASH VICTIM'S HOME

In an automobile accident that was marked by a series of unusual coincidences, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Davison, Chambersburg R. 5, escaped serious injury Tuesday evening a mile north of York Springs on the Carlisle highway.

The accident occurred in front of the home of George N. Bushey, who was fatally injured in a motor crash in York Springs, Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Davison are son-in-law and daughter, respectively, of the late Mr. Bushey. The Davison accident occurred on the same highway as the fatal crash and exactly 12 hours after the earlier collision in which Mr. Bushey received injuries which resulted in his death Tuesday afternoon in the Warner hospital. Only one mile separates the scenes of the two crashes.

Davison escaped with a shaking up, but his wife, Marie Bushey Davison, 29, received a laceration of the forehead and bruises on the nose and was treated by Dr. William Flickinger, York Springs.

Driver Swerved Car

Davison's car was parked along the left side of the highway headed toward York Springs with the lights burning when a sedan approached from the opposite direction. It was operated by George R. McDermitt, 17, York Springs R. 1.

McDermitt told Officer George Ewanke, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, he was partially blinded by the glare of Davison's headlights and thought the Chambersburg car was bearing down upon him on the wrong side of the road. He swerved to the right and the left fronts of the cars collided. Both machines were so badly damaged they had to be towed from the scene.

Two occupants of the McDermitt car required treatment from Doctor Flickinger. Walter Gitting, 21, York Springs, suffered bruises of the nose and an injury to the left eye. Maurice Elicker, 40, York Springs, was treated for bruises of the nose.

The Davisons explained they had been called to the Bushey home by reason of the death of Mr. Bushey.

BUSHEY RITES FRIDAY AT 2 P. M.

Funeral services for George N. Bushey, 65, York Springs R. 1, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident Tuesday morning, will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home with funeral services at the Chestnut Grove Lutheran church conducted by the Rev. Lester M. Utz. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.

The deceased was a son of the late John Nicholas and Liza (Helsel) Bushey and was a member of the Chestnut Lutheran church and the Independent Order of Americans.

Friends may call at the L. C. Pittenturf funeral home, York Springs, Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

EGG ASSOCIATION TO HOLD DINNER

The annual dinner and organization meeting of the Adams County Co-operative Egg association will be held at 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening, November 15, in the Bendersville community hall.

A representative of the Nearby Egg and Poultry Producers' Marketing corporation of New York city will address the meeting. During a business session three directors will be named for three-year terms to succeed members of the board whose terms expire.

Clyde G. Andrews, Orrtanna, is president of the county association.

2 MOTORISTS FACE

CODE CHARGES

John Murray, Washington, D. C., paid a fine of $10 and the costs Tuesday night before Justice of the Peace C. R. Angell, Clear Springs, on a charge of reckless driving laid by a state motor policeman from the Gettysburg substation.

Another officer from the local substation laid an information today before Justice of the Peace John D. Duhs, Penn township, against Nadine M. Border, Hanover, alleging that she disobeyed a through traffic stop sign in Penn township.

ACCUSES DRIVER

Borough Officer Glenn Guise has charged Charles L. Wilkison, Gettysburg R. 1, before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore with driving through a red traffic light at the intersection of Baltimore and Middle streets this morning.

LEGION ESSAY CONTEST RULES ARE EXPLAINED

A letter was sent on Tuesday to all the high schools in the county inviting their students to enter the annual American Legion essay contest this year. The contest is being sponsored by Legion posts in Gettysburg, Biglerville and Littlestown.

The letter, which also contained instructions covering the essay contest, was sent by Frank J. Slonaker, chairman of the essay committee on Americanism.

The communication follows in part:

"The second annual American Legion essay contest on Americanism will be held in Adams county on Friday, March 8, 1940. The general topic this year is the same as last year, namely, 'The Contribution of the American Form of Government to Democracy.' At a later date, a

LAIRD LOSES TO ANDERSON

York, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—Mayor Harry B. Anslie, republican, was re-elected mayor of York for the third consecutive term at Tuesday's municipal election, defeating Willis E. Ramsay, democrat, by a majority of 88 votes.

Anslie polled 10,757 and Ramsay 10,669 votes, complete returns show. Walter I. Anderson, democrat, was elected judge of the common pleas court, over Robert M. Laird, Hanover republican, who was backed by Lieutenant Governor S. S. Lewis, by more than 1,000 majority. Laird is now on the bench, having been appointed by Governor James to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Judge H. C. Niles.

TO DISCUSS PLAY

"Blind Alley," a psychological melodrama, will be discussed by Dr. Richard A. Arms, of the Gettysburg college faculty, in Brua chapel Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. This is the regular meeting time for Doctor Arms' theatre arts class.

Adams county republicans fumbled their best opportunity in years to sweep a complete slate of candidates into county offices at the general election on Tuesday when they dropped the office of prothonotary to Lee M. Hartman, youthful Cashtown democrat.

On the basis of returns from 41 of the 42 voting districts and unofficial but nearly complete returns from the single outstanding township, Prothonotary C. Arthur Brame will lose his fight for re-election to Hartman by a margin of about 50 votes.

In an election that was marked with wholesale ticket-cutting on both the county and local slates of candidates, unusually close contests were waged with the final outcome of a half dozen of the more important races in doubt until early this afternoon.

One of the closest races is that in which Daniel J. Wolff, Arendtsville, is expected to defeat Earl Guise, Straban township, for sheriff by a margin of about 75 votes. In September Wolff won his party's nomination by 77 votes over his closest runner up.

Gains by G.O.P.

On Tuesday the republicans retained control of the board of county commissioners by electing J. Arthur Boyd, Littlestown, and George P. Taylor, Menallen township; gained majority membership in the county board of auditors; won the office of register and recorder; retained possession of the office of the clerk of the courts and displaced two democratic associate judges with republicans.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Gettysburg, coroner of Adams county for the last 12 years, apparently has been defeated by Dr. C. G. Crist, Gettysburg republican, by a margin of close to 200 votes.

Registered Majority Not Evident

The republican registered majority of about 950 was evident only in the balloting on the state judge candidates where republicans took leads of about 700 to 800. In other races ticket-cutting wrecked party lines.

Straight tickets were in the minority in many districts Tuesday evening when election boards began their long tasks. About 13,000 countians voted.

Franklin Vote Not In

Franklin township election board members continued their count at 2 o'clock this afternoon with about a score of ballots not yet examined. Complete returns from that district were not expected until late afternoon. Cumberland township was next to the last to report completing the tabulation there about noon today.

Franklin township voters cast 693 votes on Tuesday. One hundred and sixty-five of them were reported as being straight democratic votes and 98 straight republicans.

Lee Hartman, whose total for the first 41 districts trails C. Arthur Brame by nearly 200 votes is expected to carry Franklin township by about 230 votes.

Earl Guise, democratic nominee for sheriff who was 77 below Daniel J. Wolff in the first 41 districts, was leading Wolff by about 18 votes with more than a score of ballots to be counted in the Franklin township polling place in Cashtown this afternoon.

In one of the most closely watched contests of the campaign Edgar C. McDannell, Franklin township member of the present board of county commissioners, was re-elected as minority member of the board as he trailed Boyd and Taylor. Perren W. Rebert, also of Franklin township, the second democratic nominee, is low man.

Another republican coup Tuesday was the defeat of LeRoy H. Winebrenner, Gettysburg, by P. S. Orner, Arendtsville, for county surveyor. In the 41 districts reported Orner led his opponent by over 1,200 votes.

Winfield G. Horner, chief clerk to the county commissioners, was elected register and recorder as he led the republican ticket with a total vote of 6,834 in the 41 districts. His opponent, Luther C. Thomas, Conewago township, lagged about 1,300 behind.

Roy D. Renner, Littlestown, conducted a successful campaign for re-election as clerk of the courts, defeating W. P. Gilliland by over 700 votes in the reported districts.

One of the contests remaining in doubt until partial reports from Cumberland and Franklin townships were received was that for associate judge. A Dale Krouse, Menallen township, led the contenders for that office and John C. Wible, Gettysburg, former sheriff, took second place by a margin of about 130

Robert P. Snyder carried three of the town's four voting districts to win election as justice of the peace. He defeated Calvin D. "Dan" Stallsmith, a democrat, by a vote of 1,300 to 1,106. Mr. Stallsmith carried his home district, the second precinct of the first ward.

The vote follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Simpson, Gettysburg R. 5, announce the birth of a daughter at the hospital this morning.

KIN INJURED IN FRONT OF CRASH VICTIM'S HOME

In an automobile accident that was marked by a series of unusual coincidences, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Davison, Chambersburg R. 5, escaped serious injury Tuesday evening a mile north of York Springs on the Carlisle highway.

The accident occurred in front of the home of George N. Bushey, who was fatally injured in a motor crash in York Springs, Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Davison are son-in-law and daughter, respectively, of the late Mr. Bushey. The Davison accident occurred on the same highway as the fatal crash and exactly 12 hours after the earlier collision in which Mr. Bushey received injuries which resulted in his death Tuesday afternoon in the Warner hospital. Only one mile separates the scenes of the two crashes.

Davison escaped with a shaking up, but his wife, Marie Bushey Davison, 29, received a laceration of the forehead and bruises on the nose and was treated by Dr. William Flickinger, York Springs.

Driver Swerved Car

Davison's car was parked along the left side of the highway headed toward York Springs with the lights burning when a sedan approached from the opposite direction. It was operated by George R. McDermitt, 17, York Springs R. 1.

McDermitt told Officer George Evanko, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, he was partially blinded by the glare of Davison's headlights and thought the Chambersburg car was bearing down upon him on the wrong side of the road. He swerved to the right and the left fronts of the cars collided. Both machines were so badly damaged they had to be towed from the scene.

Two occupants of the McDermitt car required treatment from Doctor Flickinger. Walter Gitting, 21, York Springs, suffered bruises of the nose and an injury to the left eye. Maurice Elcker, 40, York Springs, was treated for bruises of the nose.

The Davisons explained they had been called to the Bushey home by reason of the death of Mr. Bushey.

BUSHEY RITES FRIDAY AT 2 P. M.

Funeral services for George N. Bushey, 65, York Springs R. 1, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident Tuesday morning, will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home with further services at the Chestnut Grove Lutheran church conducted by the Rev. Lester M. Utz. Interment in the adjoining cemetery.

The deceased was a son of the late John Nicholas and Liza (Helsel) Bushey and was a member of the Chestnut Lutheran church and the Independent Order of Americans.

Friends may call at the L. C. Pittenturf funeral home, York Springs, Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

EGG ASSOCIATION TO HOLD DINNER

The annual dinner and organization meeting of the Adams County Co-operative Egg association will be held at 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening, November 15, in the Benderville community hall.

A representative of the Nearby Egg and Poultry Producers' Marketing corporation of New York city will address the meeting. During a business session three directors will be named for three-year terms to succeed members of the board whose terms expire.

Clyde G. Andrews, Orrtanna, is president of the county association.

2 MOTORISTS FACE CODE CHARGES

John Murray, Washington, D. C., paid a fine of $10 and the costs Tuesday night before Justice of the Peace C. R. Angell, Clear Springs, on a charge of reckless driving laid by a state motor policeman from the Gettysburg substation.

Another officer from the local substation laid an information today before Justice of the Peace John D. Duhs, Penn township, against Nadine M. Border, Hanover, alleging that she disobeyed a through traffic stop sign in Penn township.

ACCUSES DRIVER

Borough Officer Glenn Guise has charged Charles L. Wilkinson, Gettysburg R. 1, before Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore with driving through a red traffic light at the intersection of Baltimore and Middle streets this morning.

LEGION ESSAY CONTEST RULES ARE EXPLAINED

A letter was sent on Tuesday to all the high schools in the county inviting their students to enter the annual American Legion essay contest this year. The contest is being sponsored by Legion posts in Gettysburg, Biglerville and Littlestown.

The letter, which also contained instructions covering the essay contest, was sent by Frank J. Slonaker, chairman of the essay committee on Americanism.

The communication follows in part:

"The second annual American Legion essay contest on Americanism will be held in the respective high schools in Adams county on Friday, March 8, 1940. The general topic this year is the same as last year; namely, 'The Contribution of the American Form of Government to Democracy.' At a later date, a (Continued on Page Three)

York, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—Mayor Harry B. Anstine, republican, was re-elected mayor of York for the third consecutive term at Tuesday's municipal election, defeating Willis E. Ramsay, democrat, by a majority of 88 votes.

Anstine polled 10,757 and Ramsay 10,669 votes, complete returns show. Walter I. Anderson, democrat, was elected judge of the common pleas court, over Robert M. Laird, Hanover republican, who was backed by Lieutenant Governor S. S. Lewis, by more than 1,000 majority. Laird is now on the bench, having been appointed by Governor James to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Judge H. C. Niles.

TO DISCUSS PLAY

"Blind Alley," a psychological melodrama, will be discussed by Dr. Richard A. Arms, of the Gettysburg college faculty, in Brua chapel Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. This is the regular meeting time for Doctor Arms' theatre arts class.

Adams County Associate Judges

A. DALE KNOOSE

JOHN C. WIBLE
Republican

Adams county republicans fumbled their best opportunity in years to sweep a complete slate of candidates into county offices at the general election on Tuesday when they dropped the office of prothonotary to Lee M. Hartman, youthful Cashtown democrat.

On the basis of returns from 41 of the 42 voting districts and unofficial but nearly complete returns from the single outstanding township, Prothonotary C. Arthur Brame will lose his fight for re-election to Hartman by a margin of about 50 votes.

In an election that was marked with wholesale ticket-cutting on both the county and local slates of candidates, unusually close contests were waged with the final outcome of a half dozen of the more important races in doubt until early this afternoon.

One of the closest races is that in which Daniel J. Wolff, Arendtsville, is expected to defeat Earl Guise, Straban township, for sheriff by a margin of about 75 votes. In September Wolff won his party's nomination by 77 votes over his closest runner up.

Gains by G.O.P.

On Tuesday the republicans retained control of the board of county commissioners by electing J. Arthur Boyd, Littlestown, and George P. Taylor, Menallen township; gained majority membership in the county board of auditors; won the office of register and recorder; retained possession of the office of the clerk of the courts and displaced two democratic associate judges with republicans.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Gettysburg, coroner of Adams county for the last 12 years, apparently has been defeated by Dr. C. G. Crist, Gettysburg republican, by a margin of close to 200 votes.

Registered Majority Not Evident

The republican registered majority of about 950 was evident only in the balloting on the state judge candidates where republicans took leads of about 700 to 800. In other races ticket-cutting wrecked party lines.

Straight tickets were in the minority in many districts Tuesday evening when election boards began their long tasks. About 13,000 countians voted.

Franklin Vote Not In

Franklin township election board members continued their count at 2 o'clock this afternoon with about a score of ballots not yet examined. Complete returns from that district were not expected until late afternoon. Cumberland township was next to the last to report completing the tabulation there about noon today.

Franklin township voters cast 693 votes on Tuesday. One hundred and sixty-five of them were reported as being straight democratic votes and 98 straight republicans.

Lee Hartman, whose total for the first 41 districts trails C. Arthur Brame by nearly 200 votes is expected to carry Franklin township by about 230 votes.

Earl Guise, democratic nominee for sheriff who was 77 below Daniel J. Wolff in the first 41 districts, was leading Wolff by about 18 votes with more than a score of ballots to be counted in the Franklin township polling place in Cashtown this afternoon.

In one of the most closely watched contests of the campaign Edgar C. McDannell, Franklin township member of the present board of county commissioners, was re-elected as minority member of the board as he trailed Boyd and Taylor. Perren W. Rebert, also of Franklin township, the second democratic nominee, is low man.

Another republican coup Tuesday was the defeat of LeRoy H. Winebrenner, Gettysburg, by P. S. Orner, Arendtsville, for county surveyor. In the 41 districts reported Orner led his opponent by over 1,200 votes.

Winfield G. Horner, chief clerk to the county commissioners, was elected register and recorder as he led the republican ticket with a total vote of 6,834 in the 41 districts. His opponent, Luther C. Thomas, Conewago township, lagged about 1,300 behind.

Roy D. Renner, Littlestown, conducted a successful campaign for re-election as clerk of the courts, defeating W. F. Gilliland by over 700 votes

Rulers of Belgium and Netherlands Confer on How to Keep Out of War

The Hague, Nov. 7 (AP)—Leopold, king of the Belgians and Queen Wilhelmina, of the Netherlands engaged today in apparently urgent talks aimed, observers believed, at keeping their countries out of war and protecting their vital interests.

There were suggestions that the two lowland states, lying between Europe's great warring powers, were seeking to reconcile divergent foreign policies and present a joint neutrality front.

King Leopold arrived late Monday evening after a hurried motor trip from Brussels and proceeded at once to the Noordeinde palace, where he conferred with Queen Wilhelmina until 1:30 a. m.

It was learned that the Belgian sovereign originally had planned to return to Brussels early today but postponed his departure pending further talks.

King Leopold followed up Monday night's conference with another hour and one-half meeting with Queen Wilhelmina today.

There was no official announcement on the nature of the talk, but informed quarters said King Leopold was concerned over the possibility of a German attack against France through Belgium.

Participating in the conference were Queen Wilhelmina's foreign minister, Eelco Van Kleffens, and Belgian Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak, who came here with King Leopold.

Efforts were made to keep the visit secret, but the posting of a heavy military guard outside the palace caused the news to leak out. An official announcement issued after midnight noted Leopold's arrival but did not comment on the reason for the visit.

Informed sources said only that

Mole Absolved as Cause of Cancer

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (AP)—That unsightly mole on mullah's neck was absolved today as a cause of cancer.

Dr. Eugene F. Traub, of New York, told the American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology such blemishes "rarely, if ever, terminate in cancer of the skin."

"All blood vessel birthmarks which are red to purple in color are only cosmetic deformities," he said. "The pigmented, dark brown, warty and hairy birthmarks are also relatively innocent."

"Only if subjected in some fashion to prolonged irritation are they apt to grow wildly."

But skin growths that appear most innocent often are apt to cause the most trouble, Doctor Traub warned.

"The smooth, dark brown or dark blue marks, devoid of hair, are the ones that are most dangerous," he explained. "It is from this type that melanoma (serious skin cancer) often develops."

Doctor Traub said the type of the birthmark determines whether it can be removed safely. He counseled: "Many of these blemishes may be readily and safely removed without leaving a scar. Some, however, are really dangerous and should be left alone or destroyed in a 'radical' manner (such as surgery)."

Dr. S. William Becker, of Chicago, told the academy that sailors, soldiers and other persons with tattoos should consider their adornments permanent. They can be removed, he said, only by "destructive measures."

Observer Missing As Plane Crashes

Honolulu, Nov. 7 (AP)—A naval observation plane from the aircraft carrier Enterprise burst into flames in diving practice and crashed into the sea off Barber's Point, Monday.

The observer was missing but the pilot was saved.

The pilot, picked up by a naval crash boat after he had managed to stay afloat 40 minutes, was Lieut. Junior Grade W. R. Wallis. He suffered only slight burns about the face and forearms.

The observer was identified as Chief Aviation Mate W. T. Rhodes, of San Diego, California.

The crash occurred about 11:45 a. m. Monday Wallis said from his bed at Pearl Harbor naval hospital.

After the plane caught fire he climbed out on the left wing and told the observer to "jump!" Wallis said his foot slipped and he was blown from the plane at an altitude of about 1,000 feet.

He said he did not see Rhodes jump, but saw the plane crash.

BLIND OLD PUMPER

Trionesta, Pa., Nov. 7 (AP)—Blind since he was 15, Manley Copeland, of near Pleasantville, has pumped an oil lease for half a century. He can tell by sense of touch how drilling tools are cutting and tells time by feeling the hands of his watchface. He is unusually alert for a man of 70.

SMALL TYPE

Philadelphia, Nov. 7 (AP)—Today's election may show whether small type has anything to do with the success or failure of a candidate.

A council candidate complained his name was printed smaller than the others. Officials said it was too long for the allotted space.

PENSION PLANS ENLIVEN VOTING IN TWO STATES

(By the Associated Press)

Scattered city and state elections offered no clear-cut test on national issues today, but referenda on questions ranging from old-age pensions to pari-mutuel betting robbed the "off-year" balloting of its usual lethargy.

Interest centered largely on old age pension proposals in California and Ohio. The California plan would give up to $30 every Thursday to unemployed persons over 50, under a law similar to one rejected there last year. Payments would be made in state script redeemable after a year, provided a two-cent stamp tax was attached every week.

The Ohio plan, advocated by Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati clergyman, calls for pensions, supplementing other income, to provide total payments of $50 a month to retired single persons over 60 and $80 monthly to couples. A state income tax and a levy on high-priced real estate would finance it.

Vigorous Campaigns

Vigorous campaigns were conducted in both states. Opponents contended that the plans were unworkable and would be a burden on the very people they are designed to help. Proponents responded with intensive radio and mass-meeting campaigns seeking to get out a large vote.

A referendum on sanctioning pari-mutuel betting at race tracks was the only statewide question before New York voters. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt were at their Hyde Park, New York, home to vote in an effort to dislodge some of the local republican office holders.

Prohibition was an issue in Indiana, where towns of less than 3,000 population were electing town officials. Dry forces concentrated on candidates pledged to oppose issuance of local liquor licenses.

One of the few contests bearing even remotely on President Roosevelt's policies was in Kentucky, where Gov. Keen Johnson, democrat, who succeeded Gov. A. B. Chandler when the latter resigned to be appointed to the senate, sought election to the office he now holds. His republican opponent, Circuit Judge King Swope, criticized the national administration in his campaign.

The only other gubernatorial election was in Mississippi, where Paul B. Johnson, democrat, was unopposed.

Philadelphia Race

National affairs were mentioned also in Philadelphia's mayoral race. Robert C. White, democrat, was opposed by Robert E. Lambertson, republican, who argued that a democratic victory would diminish the national prestige of the republican party.

Detroit's mayoral contest involved disputed claims of lar support. Edward Jeffries, Jr., president of the city council, sought to defeat Mayor Richard Reading, who was elected two years ago over the opposition of the C.I.O. Reading charged that Jeffries favored the "radical element," while the latter's friends said that such C.I.O. support as Jeffries received was due to the fact that the organization was more opposed to Reading.

The non-partisan race for mayor in Cleveland lay between Mayor Harold H. Burton and John E. O'Donnell.

San Francisco voters had eight candidates from whom to choose a mayor. Angelo J. Rossi, the incumbent, sought a third four-year term; his principal opponent was Frank R. Havenner, democratic representative in congress.

HISTORY REPEATS

Omaha, Neb.—William H. Schmoller was in Holland when the World war broke out and he booked passage on the steamship Rotterdam. It didn't sail and he finally got home on another ship. Twenty-five years later Schmoller again was in Holland when a new war began and he faced another transportation problem. This time he came home—on the Rotterdam.

BEST OF EVERYTHING

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7 (AP)—Suburban Fox Chapel is out to repeat its record of last November—every registered voter casting a ballot. J. P. Campbell, public relations committee chairman, urged in his plea for a 100 per cent turnout that voters pick the best candidates regardless of party affiliations, adding: "There have been so many bad republicans in the past and bad democrats of the present that every American should vote for the best man running for every office."

LUTHERAN WORLD PARLEY IS CANCELED BY WAR

The Lutheran World convention which was to have been held in Philadelphia next May has been canceled because of the war in Europe.

This was announced Monday in New York by Rev. Ralph Long, a member of the convention planning commission. The convention was to have been attended by representatives of Lutheran synods in the United States and Europe.

Such action was forecast three weeks ago when plans for the convention were temporarily abandoned.

1939 TURKEY CROP

The 1939 turkey crop is almost 32,000,000 birds, the largest of record. This is 22 per cent larger than the 1938 crop of over 26 million birds, according to the agricultural marketing service at Washington. Cold storage holdings on September 1 were almost double those of the same date last year—10,808,000 pounds, compared with 5,711,000 pounds on September 1, 1938.

mer register and recorder, was about 800 votes below his democratic running mate, Mr. Bream.

For the first time in a number of years republicans gained a majority on the board of county auditors with the election of John S. Wolfe, Biglerville, and the re-election of Samuel C. Lott, Highland township. Two democratic incumbents trailed but H. H. Thomas, Reading township, placed third and becomes minority member. P. A. T. Bower, Butler township, was fourth in line.

Returns came in slowly Tuesday evening. The first received was from the first district of Tyrone township at 10:30 o'clock. Highland township was second at 10:50 o'clock. Only six districts had reported by midnight.

J. Francis Yake, Esq., who won both republican and democratic nominations in September, received a large complimentary vote from voters of both parties.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad today declared a dividend of one dollar a share on its stock payable December 19 to stockholders of record November 18. Last year the company paid a dividend of 50 cents a share.

WOMAN INJURED

Mrs. Annie M. Rinehart, 75, 609 Carlisle street, Hanover, sustained a possible fracture of the left ankle, injury to the right knee, brush burns and bruises, when she was struck by an automobile while crossing the street in front of her home at 6:10 p. m. Tuesday.

The automobile, traveling north on Carlisle street, was operated by A. S. Staley, Littlestown. Mrs. Rinehart was crossing the street from the west side to the east side, when she was hit. At present, she is under the care of a physician. Hanover police made an investigation.

RAIN DISFRANCHISES HIM

Mercer, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—For the first time in 74 years Col. George Hamilton was prevented from voting in the general election when a physician advised him to stay out of the rain due to his poor physical condition. The 95-year-old veteran who cast his first ballot in 1865 recalled trying to vote for Abraham Lincoln while serving in the Union army, but election officials found he was only 20 and refused him a ballot.

SHELLEY WINS DAUPHIN TEST

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Carl B. Shelley, chunky Dauphin county prosecutor who conducted the grand jury inquiry against democrats in the administration of former Governor Earle, won an easy victory Tuesday in his first campaign.

The republican district attorney received 40,311 votes to 16,947 for Paul A. Kunkel, the democratic nominee, with returns complete. Shelley was appointed district attorney two years ago to succeed Karl E. Richards after the latter's elevation to judge.

Shelley will work in a new court house, authorized by the voters, 29,355 to 19,604. A $1,700,000 bond issue to construct the building to replace the half-century old structure where state cases are heard was approved.

Guy J. Swope, budget director under Earle and former representative in the national house, was defeated for the minority seat on the board of county commissioners by James H. Lane. Swope lost his contest for re-election to the congress last year.

PROVOCATION

Newark, N. J.—Advisory Master John A. Matthews approved the divorce petition of Mrs. Helen M. A. C. Harris when she told him: (1) Her husband earned $3 when there was nothing to eat in the house but pancakes, and (2) He spent $2 of it to buy gold fish.

JUST A BYSTANDER

Baltimore—E. J. W. Revell dropped around to look at a house he owned—or thought he owned—and found the three-story structure was gone. He checked up and filed a $3,000 damage suit against a construction company, charging the firm's workmen tore down his house by mistake. Now Revell has another worry. Someone's building a stone warehouse on the vacant lot.

QUIET, PLEASE!

Farley, N. M.—The law has caught up with Farley. A citizens committee, angered by a Saturday night riot that injured 100 persons, demanded county commissioners give a thought to law enforcement. The commissioners assigned a constable, deputy sheriff and justice of the peace to hold Farley's exuberance in check.

WON'T TALK TURKEY

Berthoud, Colo.—Some towns want November 23, some want November 30, but Mayor L. E. McKanna doesn't care when Berthoud observes Thanksgiving. He told his townspeople: "I don't care when you celebrate or whether you celebrate at all."

SMART LADS

Falls City, Neb.—Nebraska's first oil well brought in last week hasn't made money for its owners yet—but leave it to the younger generation. Boys sold sample bottles of oil to visitors who did not bring their own containers. One had reported a $4.60 net profit.

CANINE PATRONS

Chicago—Two dogs attended the opera, "Mignon," in style, occupying space in a box. They were the (Seeing-eye) German shepherd guide dogs of two blind music lovers. "Berta" lay quietly at the feet of Miss Milla Baker and "Erna" behaved equally as well for her master, Robert Freemole.

Democrats Pick Nine State Mayors

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Headed by Philadelphia, 16 Pennsylvania cities elected republican mayors Tuesday, while nine chose democrats. Several republican incumbents fell before democrats, however, including Johnstown's Daniel J. Shields, Ralph Johnstown, of Sharon, and Harry N. Yost, of Greensburg.

A total of 28 cities voted for mayors. Chief republican victory was in Philadelphia, where former John Robert E. Lamberton defeated the democratic-fusion ticket candidate, Dr. Robert C. White, city controller.

Cities which retained their republican executives included Chester, Coatesville, Erie, Lebanon, Oil City, Uniontown, Wilkes-Barre and York. Carbondale continued William L. Monahan in office and Easton held Joseph Morrison. They were the only democratic mayors retained.

Reading elected Harry F. Menges, a democrat over socialist Mayor J. Henry Stump, the Berks metropolis executive for two terms.

Allentown favored democrat George F. Erich and Lock Haven elected Charles E. Herr as its first democratic mayor in 12 years. Pennsylvania's newest city, Arnold, chose a democrat for its first mayor—M. F. Horne. The Westminster county municipality was elevated from a borough this year.

MAROONS MEET HERSHEY HERE

Having come out of the Waynesboro game in good physical condition, the Gettysburg high school Maroons are now buckling down in preparation for the final three games of the season, the first of which will be played with Hershey high here Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A feeling that they have an even chance to win in all of their remaining games is held by all Maroon players which should prove a distinct advantage.

On the basis of the season's records Hershey and Gettysburg appear to be on an equal basis. Waynesboro whipped Hershey 25-0 and turned back the locals by a 26-6 count. Hershey scored a 14-2 victory over Mechanicsburg early in the season while the Forney-men and Mechanicsburg battled to a 6-6 deadlock.

Several new plays will find their way into the local repertoire this week. A series of stiff drills will be given the Maroons the remainder of the week.

During the half time intermission the Gettysburg high school band and the Sons of Veterans bugle and drum corps will drill as a part of the Armistice Day celebration.

Expect Huge Crowd at Lancaster Saturday

With a good break in the weather on Saturday P. and M. officials look for a record-breaking crowd at Lancaster to witness the annual Bulletin-Diplomat football game. A victory for Gettysburg will probably mean the Eastern Pennsylvania conference title while P. and M. triumph would probably mean a triple tie with Muhlenberg.

Homecoming Day will be observed by P. and M. on Saturday. In addition members of the team of 1914 which defeated Penn will be special guests.

The local campus was found painted up a bit this morning with P. and M. signs, presumably the work of Lancaster collegians. The painting was quickly removed this morning.

"The contest is open to all high school seniors in Adams county who will be qualified to enter college for the school term 1940-41.

"The essay, which shall contain from 300 to 1,000 words, is to be judged for English, originality, structure, evidence of ability to reason, and research."

Kin Elected To Office in Oxford Twp.

THE vote in three townships on Tuesday proved to be a family affair, although in only one district were the members of the same clan successful in their "campaigns."

In Oxford township, Linus Bevenour was chosen constable, while his daughter-in-law, Marian Bevenour was elected inspector of elections.

Clarence Weikert, of Highland township, opposed his cousin, Nevlin, for school director, but neither one was elected. A. M. Weikert, a brother of Clarence, was a candidate for judge of elections in the same district.

Another uncle and nephew combination had a place on the Liberty township ticket, with James S. Boyle a candidate for judge of elections and his uncle, James H. Boyle, a candidate for inspector of elections. Neither one was elected.

Circuit Court Upholds N.L.R.B. Steel Order

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP)—A National Labor Relations board order directing Republic Steel corporation to re-hire 5,000 Ohio workers involved in the "little steel" strike of 1937 was upheld today by the United States circuit court of appeals.

The corporation had asked the court to set aside the order, issued by the board October 18, 1938.

The ruling of the court of appeals would require the corporation to provide back pay for strikers who were not returned to their jobs. At the time the case was argued in the court, company counsel estimated such payments might amount to $7,000,000.

Travels 44 Miles With Broken Leg To Get Treatment

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP)—Hospital surgeons marveled Tuesday at the courage of Clarence Gibson, 28, who tried to hobble nearly 44 miles to a Philadelphia hospital on crutches, hoping to earn money en route so he wouldn't be a "charity patient."

His tortuous, week-long journey from Parkersburg, Chester county, with an infected left leg hanging useless, was prolonged by stops at farmhouses, where he tried to peddle shoelaces, needles, pens and other notions to pay for the medical skill he hopes will save his leg from amputation.

He had almost reached his goal Monday night when help came. Two policemen found him sitting beside a suburban Ridley Park road, his head in his hands and his crutches and a basket of notions on the grass beside him.

His leg, he explained, had been broken. Several operations followed, then a bone transplantation and infection. A week ago his physician told him he should go to Jefferson hospital, Philadelphia. So he picked up his crutches and notions and set out.

HOPE DIM FOR MEDIATION IN EUROPE'S WAR

(By the Associated Press)
Proffered mediation by the monarchs of Belgium and the Netherlands raised only scant hopes today for European peace.

The three nations who received the offer, Britain, France and Germany, said that they would consider it.

Britain said consultations with France would be held before replying.

Unofficial French quarters and the Paris press predicted "no" would be the French answer.

Germany's reply was pondered by Adolf Hitler, who "welcomed" a similar offer August 29, three days before the German invasion of Poland started.

Speculation immediately arose whether Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold made their sudden move because they feared imminent military developments which would embroil their nations or whether they considered circumstances propitious for ending the conflict.

Cautious optimism was evident in the Netherlands, based on reluctance of the belligerents to start major land offensives.

A few hours before the offer reached London, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax broadcast a speech repeating a broad outline of war aims for "a new world in which nations will not permit insane armed rivalry to deny their hopes for a fuller life." His speech had been planned several days ago.

Authoritative German sources asserted the Halifax speech made a German reply scarcely necessary and interpreted it as a negative British answer to the mediation offer.

The German high command reported "livelier" activity on the western front by artillery and scouting patrols. They said Germany had lost five planes and the allies seven during the first week of November.

Unofficial French dispatches asserted 12 or 13 German planes had been brought down in an aerial battle Monday. The previous official claim was that nine of 27 German planes were downed.

Two unidentified planes were reported to have flown over Paris early Tuesday dropping leaflets repeating parts of the speech of Russian Premier Molotov made October 31 in which he mentioned closer German-Russian co-operation.

It was not determined whether the planes were flown by Germans or by French communists who oppose continuation of the war.

Italian newspapers joined in reprinting an article by Virginia Gayda, authoritative fascist, which accused Russia of applying dangerous pressure in the Balkans and of partial responsibility for the war.

ADVOCATES OF 'OPEN SUNDAY' SCORE GAINS

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Advocates of the "open Sunday" in Pennsylvania scored gains in Tuesday's voting but also sustained a few set backs.

The deepest dent in the ban on Sunday amusements was made in Tioga county. Five communities that had permitted Sabbath-day movies without going about it formally, decided in referenda to make them legal. The towns are Wellsboro, the county seat, Mansfield, a college town, Blossburg, Elkland and Westfield.

Their theaters were closed last July on protests by the Lord's Day alliance. District Attorney Charles M. Elliott informed theater owners they could not re-open until the matter was decided at the polls.

Other communities dropping the bars against Sunday movies included:

The boroughs of Mt. Penn and West Reading, Berks county; Bristol township, Bucks county, and Shinglehouse, Potter county. Forty Port, Luzerne county, voted almost two to one against Sunday movies.

Citizens of Mifflinburg, Union county, withdrew their petitions for a referendum on the issue before it got to a vote.

Sunday sports were ruled out in East Hanover township, Dauphin county, near the state capital, and in Palmyra, Lebanon county.

Under legislation enabling communities to decide whether to relax the blue laws locally, the first Sunday sports balloting was held in 1933. More than half of the state's municipalities voted then to permit outdoor athletic events on the Sabbath.

In 1935, communities asking for referenda first were permitted to vote on Sunday movies. Of 325 communities testing the issue, 159 defeated the proposal. Only a few have voted since then.

MAROONS MEET HERSHEY HERE

Having come out of the Waynesboro game in good physical condition the Gettysburg high school Maroons are now bucking down in preparation for the final three games of the season, the first of which will be played with Hershey high here Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A feeling that they have an even chance to win in all of their remaining games is held by all Maroon players which should prove a distinct advantage.

On the basis of the season's records Hershey and Gettysburg appear to be on an equal basis. Waynesboro whipped Hershey 25-0 and turned back the locals by a 26-6 count. Hershey scored a 14-2 victory over Mechanicsburg early in the season while the Forney-men and Mechanicsburg battled to a 6-6 deadlock.

Several new plays will find their way into the local repertoire this week. A series of stiff drills will be given the Maroons the remainder of the week.

During the half time intermission the Gettysburg high school band and the Sons of Veterans bugle and drum corps will drill as a part of the Armistice Day celebration.

London, Nov. 8 (AP)—Authoritative British sources said today that the war mediation offer of Leopold, king of the Belgians, and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands would receive "careful consideration" in consultation with the French and Polish governments before a reply is made.

POOF--NOTHING BUT PROOF FOR OLD MOHAWK MEDICINE

Mrs. Fred Pettjohn, Rinard, Ill., writes: your medicine is very good, helped me ever so much, much more than anything I ever had. Old Mohawk helps so many who are constipated, because the active ingredients—Sulphate Magnesium, Sodium Phosphate, Sodium Salicylate and Iron Citrate are recognized as helpful in regulating the bowels. Persons with free bowel movements are less subject to disordered conditions of the stomach and intestines—such as Gas pains, Sick Headache, Biliousness and other achey and painful ailments due to Constipation. Old Mohawk only 49 cents a bottle, sold on Money-Back Guarantee. By mail add 15c extra. At Bender's Cut Rate Store.

register and recorder, was about 200 votes below his democratic running mate, Mr. Bream.

For the first time in a number of years republicans gained a majority on the board of county auditors with the election of John S. Wolfe, Biglerville, and the re-election of Samuel C. Lott, Highland township. Two democratic incumbents trailed but H. H. Thomas, Reading township, placed third and becomes minority member. P. A. T. Bower, Butler township, was fourth in line.

Returns came in slowly Tuesday evening. The first received was from the first district of Tyrone township at 10:30 o'clock. Highland township was second at 10:50 o'clock. Only six districts had reported by midnight.

J. Francis Yake, Esq., who won both republican and democratic nominations in September, received a large complimentary vote from voters of both parties.

fus H. Bushman polled 289 ballots and was designated as minority inspector.

Republican C. Tyson Tipton was named judge of elections in the second ward with 392 votes, while Al Holtzworth, democrat, was given 281. David D. Kendeheart, republican, was chosen majority inspector of elections with a vote of 344 while J. Warren Gilbert was designated minority inspector with 296 votes.

Town Count Ended at 3:30 a. m. In the third ward republicans cast 374 votes for Ida M. Fisel as majority inspector of elections. Annie M. Cunningham, a democrat, will become minority inspector with 330 votes. Claude A. Sheads, a democrat, was elected judge of elections there with 389 votes. He defeated Laura H. Mauss, republican, who received 302 votes.

The election board in the second precinct of the first ward was the first in the borough to finish its work this morning. It made official returns to the court house about 3 o'clock. The third and second wards followed in that order, but it was not until about 4:30 o'clock that the board from the first precinct finished and took its return sheets to the court house.

DEATHS

Lutheran church, Aspers, for Mrs. Grace L. (Wierman) Gulden, who died Monday morning in the West Side sanitarium from a complication of diseases.

The Rev. Dr. O. D. Coble, of Bendersville, officiated. Interment was made in the Bendersville cemetery. The pallbearers were B. G. Walters, Joseph Boyer, E. D. Helges, John Deardorff, W. E. Bream and R. M. Martin, all members of the Upper Adams County Lions club.

ADD-RESORT THRILLS

St. Petersburg, Fla. (AP)—Wildcats still prowled wooded sections of Pinellas County only a few minutes' drive from this tourist resort where the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals train and thousands of northerners spend their winters.

Hunters recently bagged two cats near Largo, the largest of which weighed 40 pounds. The cats do not attack humans but are destructive to game and—if hungry enough—will raid poultry yards.

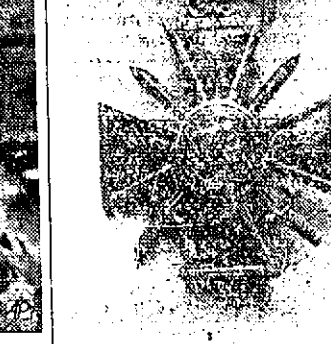

NEW TERRITORY

Buenos Aires, (AP)—Argentina is despite its modern appearance and fine capital, still far from a completely explored country. The discovery of a previously unknown lake more than 125 miles long in Chaco territory of Northern Argentina has just been announced.

At a recent special meeting of the town council H. L. Harbaugh was appointed Burgess to fill the unexpired term of P. M. Moore.

Miss Janet Pryor, of Waynesboro, spent the week-end with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reck.

"Must We Have Poverty" is the topic for the Sunday evening meeting of the Fairfield Union Christian Endeavor society with Clyde Bream, leader.

ON BYRD TRIP—Franklin Johnson, full-blooded Eskimo from St. Michaels, Alaska, will be one of crew members aboard the "North Star" on its trip to Antarctica with Byrd party. Johnson wears a bird feather jacket to keep him warm.

39 EDITION—Manufacture of France's award for valor, the "Croix de Guerre," has been resumed now that the war enters its third month. The model is the same as that used in 1914-18 except that 1939 appears on reverse side.

News notes from the Biglerville—Arendtsville—Bendersville section as gathered by special Times correspondent.

Call Biglerville, No. 8

A special program in observance of American Education Week will be presented at the assembly period Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the Biglerville high school. The Rev. Henry W. Sternat, who will be one of the speakers, will talk on "Love of Learning." Marsby Little, of Gettysburg, assistant county superintendent of schools, will also talk. His subject will be "Education for Freedom."

Dr. and Mrs. Harvey D. Hoover, of Gettysburg, were guests Tuesday evening of Prof. and Mrs. Leslie V. Stock, of Biglerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Rice, of Biglerville, were visitors to Harrisburg, Tuesday.

Richard Cline and Kermit Sterner were admitted to membership in the Junior Order United American Mechanics at a meeting of the Biglerville branch recently. A drive for new members is now being made. Next Monday evening the York and Adams county lodges will meet with the Biglerville council in Biglerville.

Mrs. D. B. Lady, of Arendtsville, has been visiting in Pittsburgh.

Miss Anna Black and Miss Alice Black, of Flora Dale, have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Michener, of Buck Hill Falls.

Mrs. M. T. Dill, Mrs. Ralph E. Arnold and Mrs. Allen S. Stauffer, of Biglerville, and Mrs. W. W. Irwin, of Flora Dale, attended the tea held Tuesday afternoon by the Woman's league of Gettysburg college.

The new uniforms of the Biglerville high school band will make their initial appearance Saturday afternoon at the game between the home team and the team from New Cumberland on the Biglerville field. The uniforms consist of a gold jacket with black braid topped by a cape of black with gold lining. The caps which are black, are trimmed with gold and have gold pompoms.

Thirty-six members attended the regular meeting of the Upper County Lion's club held Tuesday evening at the Biglerville hotel. Leslie V. Stock, the president, presided. Dr. Harvey D. Hoover, of the faculty of the Lutheran theological seminary, Gettysburg, who was the guest speaker, talked on "The American Way of Life."

The next meeting will be held at the hotel in two weeks. John Klinefelter and Leroy Ziegler are in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Cashman and two sons, of New Oxford, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Leinart, of Biglerville.

Miss Thelma Slaybaugh, of Harrisburg, spent Tuesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Slaybaugh, of Biglerville.

Miss Margaret Trostle, Harrisburg, spent Tuesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Trostle, Arendtsville.

Mrs. Joseph Stubbs and children, Shirley and Joseph, Quaker Valley, visited friends in Newville, Sunday.

Miss Marie Walter, has returned to Harrisburg after a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Walter, Arendtsville.

Pennsylvania Railroad Declares $1 Dividend

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad today declared a dividend of one dollar a share on its stock payable December 19 to stockholders of record November 18. Last year the company paid a dividend of 50 cents a share.

Mrs. Annie M. Rinehart, 75, 609 Carlisle street, Hanover, sustained a possible fracture of the left ankle injury to the right knee, brush burns and bruises, when she was struck by an automobile while crossing the street in front of her home at 6:10 p. m. Tuesday.

The automobile, traveling north on Carlisle street, was operated by A. S. Staley, Littlestown. Mrs. Rinehart was crossing the street from the west side to the east side, when she was hit. At present, she is under the care of a physician. Hanover police made an investigation.

Mercer, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—For the first time in 74 years Col. George Hamilton was prevented from voting in the general election when a physician advised him to stay out of the rain due to his poor physical condition. The 95-year-old veteran who cast his first ballot in 1865 recalled trying to vote for Abraham Lincoln while serving in the Union army, but election officials found he was only 20 and refused him a ballot.

SHELLEY WINS DAUPHIN TEST

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Carl B. Shelley, chunky Dauphin county prosecutor who conducted the grand jury inquiry against democrats in the administration of former Governor Earle, won an easy victory Tuesday in his first campaign.

The republican district attorney received 40,311 votes to 16,947 for Paul A. Kunkel, the democratic nominee, with returns complete. Shelley was appointed district attorney two years ago to succeed Karl E. Richards after the latter's elevation to judge.

Shelley will work in a new court house, authorized by the voters, 29,355 to 19,604. A $1700,000 bond issue to construct the building to replace the half-century old structure where state cases are heard was approved.

Guy J. Swope, budget director under Earle and former representative in the national house, was defeated for the minority seat on the board of county commissioners by James H. Lane. Swope lost his contest for re-election to the congress last year.

Flashes of Life

By
The Associated Press

PROVOCATION

Newark, N. J.—Advisory Master John A. Matthews approved the divorce petition of Mrs. Helen M. A. C. Harris when she told him: (1) Her husband earned $3 when there was nothing to eat in the house but pancakes, and (2) He spent $2 of it to buy gold fish.

JUST A BYSTANDER

Baltimore—E. J. W. Revell dropped around to look at a house he owned—or thought he owned—and found the three-story structure was gone. He checked up and filed a $3,000 damage suit against a construction company, charging the firm's workmen tore down his house by mistake. Now Revell has another worry. Someone's building a stone warehouse on the vacant lot.

QUET, PLEASE!

Farley, N. M.—The law has caught up with Farley. A citizens committee, angered by a Saturday night riot that injured 100 persons, demanded county commissioners give a thought to law enforcement. The commissioners assigned a constable, deputy sheriff and justice of the peace to hold Farley's exuberance in check.

WONT TALK TURKEY

Beithoud, Colo.—Some towns want November 23, some want November 30, but Mayor L. E. McKanna doesn't care when Beithoud observes Thanksgiving. He told his townspeople: "I don't care when you celebrate or whether you celebrate at all."

SMART LADS

Falls City, Neb.—Nebraska's first oil well brought in last week hasn't made money for its owners yet—but leave it to the younger generation. Boys sold sample bottles of oil to visitors who did not bring their own containers. One lad reported a $4.60 net profit.

CANINE PATRONS

Chicago—Two dogs attended the opera, "Mignon," in style, occupying space in a box. They were the (Seeing-eye) German shepherd guide dogs of two blind music lovers. "Beta" lay quietly at the feet of Miss Milla Baker and "Erna" behaved equally as well for her master, Robert Fremont.

Democrats Pick Nine State Mayors

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Headed by Philadelphia, 16 Pennsylvania cities elected republican mayors Tuesday, while nine chose democrats. Several republican incumbents fell before democrats, however, including Johnstown's Daniel J. Shields, Ralph Johnstown, of Sharon, and Harry N. Yost, of Greensburg.

A total of 28 cities voted for mayors. Chief republican victory was in Philadelphia, where former John Robert E. Lamberton defeated the democratic fusion ticket, candidate, Dr. Robert C. White, city controller.

Cities which retained their republican executives included Chester, Coatesville, Erie, Lebanon, Oil City, Uniontown, Wilkes-Barre and York. Carbondale continued William L. Monahan in office and Easton held Joseph Morrison. They were the only democratic mayors retained.

Reading elected Harry F. Monges, a democrat over socialist Mayor J. Henry Stump, the Berks metropolitan executive for two terms.

Allentown favored democrat George F. Birch and Lock Haven elected Charles E. Herr as its first democratic mayor in 12 years.

Pennsylvania's newest city, Arnold, chose a democrat for its first mayor—M. F. Horne. The Westmoreland county municipality was elevated from a borough this year.

Brazil's gigantic coffee industry sprang out of plants that were brought 300 years ago from Arabia.

An Evening Thought

Advice is seldom welcome; and those who want it the most like it the least.—Chesterfield.

Out of the Past

Happening of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times the files reveal.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Local Talent Show a Success: With live dolls dancing through two hours of entertainment, "Pi Pi of the Top Shop" delighted a large audience at Walter's Theatre on Friday evening.

As a most appropriate opening number Pauline Rudisill sang "Babyland," and a moment later Genevieve Power appears wandering through a woodland scene. Gilbert Becker, as the sandman, sings to her.

Miss Lillian Ring, as Pi Pi, had the lead, and played and sang in a most acceptable manner. Lillian Kitzmiller was the colored doll, Lucille Bender the rag doll, and Jacob Rudisill, Donald Ikeler and Mr. Simonon, of college, had other leading doll parts. Miss Helen Pfeffer sang for several of the choruses. Miss Katherine Duncan and Lloyd Schaeffer gave a demonstration of the "Maxixe."

Miss Amy Swope, first as the witch and then as the fairy; Lawrence Sheds as the old toymaker, and William Duncan and William Troxell, the clowns, were all most acceptable.

The entertainment was given for the benefit of the Kurtz playground fund and realized $85.00. To Miss Frances Pritchey is due the credit of the management of the entire affair, her club of young girls "The Gettysburg Camp Fire of Jenny Wrens," being the organization under whose auspices it was given. Miss Minnie Lohr, pianist for the evening, deserves special mention.

Culp—Kraft: Cletus R. Culp and Miss Laura M. Kraft, both of Menallen township, were married Friday evening in the office of Clerk of the Courts Olinger by Squire Harnish. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kraft. Mr. Culp is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Culp, with whom they will reside for the present.

Society Elects: The Choral Society on Thursday evening elected Prof. R. S. Kirby, president; Rev. F. E. Taylor, vice president; Miss Grace Sachs, secretary; and I. L. Taylor, treasurer; and Miss Minnie Lohr, pianist.

Beales Goes to Congress: C. William Beales, of Gettysburg, is elected to represent the Twentieth Congressional District. The unofficial total for the entire county shows that he has a plurality here of 428 while latest returns from York County show that he has triumphed over Brodbeck there by about 400.

Brumbaugh (for Governor) carried the State with Penrose (for United States Senate) by an overwhelming majority.

D. Calvin Rudisill is again elected to represent Adams County in the State Legislature, having a substantial lead over Mr. Bream, the Republican candidate.

Marriage Licenses: Clerk of the Courts Olinger has issued marriage licenses to the following:

William V. Klunk, son of H. V. Klunk, and Catherine J. Gebhart, daughter of F. X. Gebhart, both of Mt. Pleasant township.

Howard J. Bowling, son of John S. Bowling, and Fannie G. Rose, daughter of Joseph Rose, both of Liberty township.

Eddie Plank Gets Release: The news of the release by the Athletics, of Eddie Plank, Gettysburg's baseball pride, came as a great surprise to his scores of friends here Saturday evening who could scarcely believe that Connie Mack would let go the man who has worked for him since 1901, winning many pennants, and always dependable when others failed. With Plank go Bender and Coombs, two other men who served Mack well.

Party for Rebecca: Gettysburg Lodge, Daughters of Rebecca, were guests Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Gochenour in Bendersville.

BOYHOOD REMINISCENCE
One cold October day at Port Austin where we stay

For the summer I went calling on the druggist of the town.
When I questioned "where is he?"
Mrs. Pittwood said to me:
"Jack it putting up the stove which he took down."

Since the time I was a lad, I'd forgotten people had Such a grim and dismal duty every autumn to perform
So I said: "I'll wander back and just take a look at Jack
At his annual performance to make sure of keeping warm."

There he stood, as once stood dad, and the self-same look he had
As he held two lengths of stove pipe which refused to join at all.
And I'll swear from head to foot he was smeared with last year's soot
Just as always was my father at that duty every fall.

And I chuckled as I heard him repeat the very word
Which my father used to mutter as to link the pipes he strove.
And I'll vow I thought that day I could hear my mother say:
"Son, you mustn't watch your father when he's putting up the stove."

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE . . .

Oklahoma City (AP)—Frank S. Smith, former G-man and Oklahoma City's new chief of police, was caught in a traffic jam and looked around for traffic officers on duty in that block.

"Finally I saw them standing on a corner talking with both hands," said the chief.

Persistent honking of the automobile horn failed to distract them from their argument before the jam finally broke and the chief's car moved on. Later he summoned the two eloquent officers.

"What," said the chief, "were you arguing about?"

"We were discussing ways and means of improving Oklahoma City traffic conditions," said they.

PLANE FACTS

Tucson, Ariz. (AP)—An airplane sowed 200 pounds of 50 varieties of grass seed over range land near here to test that method of restoring the range for cattle.

The University of Arizona and the U. S. soil conservation service cooperated in the experiment. Results will not be known for several months.

A BOOK FROM SOMEWHERE

ONE fine thing about having an habitual love for books is that you accumulate so many that remain strangers to you, so that at most any moment you are given the pleasant surprise of a book friend who has been in your midst for a long time—like finding a thrilling human friend a thousand miles from home who proves to be your next door neighbor!

Well, I was lonely of an evening recently, and delved into book after book for that unusual solace that comes to one from a silent voice between its covers. Finally I came across a stranger that attracted my attention by its title—"How to be Happy on Nothing a Year," by a man who lives in Greenville, South Carolina, and who is greatly beloved there because of his kindly and unselfish character. His name is Charles A. David and he was at one time a cartoonist for the Greenville News. Now I am sorry I did not meet him there on my many visits to that town.

"No one," says the gentleman who introduces the book, "now living in Greenville, South Carolina, can recall the time when Mr. David was not a character there. He was born to fit into the life of a friendly community, and to make it more friendly." That tribute is something to make one justly proud.

I have no idea where this book came from. It nestled among dozens in my library. Perhaps the publishers sent it to me, or someone gave it to me—or maybe, it just happened where I found it! Anyway, what a joy, what a delight of a book. Simply, honestly, humanly, and humorously written by a man who couldn't make anyone dislike him if one tried. He boasts no wealth, owns very little, is so modest that he shrinks from the smallest publicity, and yet everyone loves him and he himself says that he is one of the happiest human beings alive. The secret being that he devotes all his time to making others happy.

I confess, however, that I have read few books that have given me greater joy or inspired me more to be just the sort of a man that David exemplified himself to be. His simple life of service, his love of nature and outdoor beauty, is told by him in his book in a manner that amounts also to genius. Perhaps it is genius.

And to think that this charming book had to wait six years before I found it out. I might have died before drinking in its beauty! I am glad that I still live to tell others about it.

THE CREEPING MAN

By Frances Shelley Wees

YESTERDAY: Gordon tells Michael that first his boat was swiped, then his dog killed, but he'll "get even." An analysis shows no poison on the meat, but a scrap of it kills a cat.

Chapter 28

Garden Party

It was Saturday afternoon before the Sunday of Tuck's garden party. Michael sat on the edge of his father's desk, swinging his legs, and looking gloomily over the drab city roofs visible through the open window. His father sat at the big desk, whistling tunelessly between his teeth.

Michael had been talking. He went on with his story.

"So I tried to figure it out," he said. "It seemed to me that there must be some reason why it should be the meat that he . . . to use Gordon's term . . . chose to poison."

"You just got through saying it wasn't poisoned," his father said sharply.

Michael glanced at him. "Perhaps I did," he said mildly. "But of course it was. The dog died. The cat died. What Jethro meant was that it wasn't poisoned with anything he knew anything about. With anything that had any known reaction. But we should have died very suddenly if we had eaten that meat."

"You're moving immediately?"
"No. We're not moving."
"You've got to, lad."
"No. It's too late. It wouldn't do any good to move. He doesn't know how much we know, you see. We're on our guard now. Watching . . . at least I am. The girl's don't know of course. They think the dog had a fit or I hope they do."

John Forrester compressed his lips. "You're the only boy I've got," he said shortly.

"Always thinking of yourself, aren't you?" Michael said reproachfully.

The District Attorney cleared. Michael lit a cigarette.

"As I was saying," he went on, "I wondered why it was the meat and not the soup of the pudding. Or the bread. And I found out."

"Why then?"
"Well, you see, it's this way. The butcher boy came without the meat. He left the shop with it—he was sure. Anyway, I phoned the butcher, and asked. So we came to the conclusion that the meat was intercepted on the way. Why the meat? Because, my well beloved father, the groceries and all the rest of the supplies come from the city, direct to our door; while the butcher is on this side of town, and invariably sends the meat supply to the University first. The boy stops his cart there at the back door of the residences, and carries in armloads of supplies. And, while he is carrying in armloads of supplies the meat for the Horseshoe is . . . where? It should be reposing peacefully in the cart, waiting to be taken for a further ride."

"Well?"

"Well, it wasn't."

"Where was it?"

Michael took an envelope from his pocket. From it he drew a square of butcher's paper. In the center of it was a hole, a neat round hole that might have been punched out with a lead pencil, save that it bore no pencil marks. Michael held it up.

Animal Souls

"You see that hole?"

"Of course."

"Byrington," said Michael laconically.

"Byrington?"

"Well, hypodermic. Clever. Gasous poison that leaves no trace. Hypodermic so that he doesn't have to untie the parcel. I don't think our friend intended to take the parcel from the cart, no. But he'd scarcely dare stand there too long, even in the covered arway where the cart was. I think he barely got his hands on it when he heard something—footsteps probably, and he steps into a convenient doorway. The footsteps turn out to be the butcher boy's, who thereupon drives off."

"Who was around that door between half past five and six?"

Michael looked down at his foot. "Well," he said slowly, "Katie didn't see everyone perhaps. But she saw Duncan Murchison, coming across the campus. He probably entered the back door, and went up to his room. That was just as the boy's cart stood in the arway. She didn't watch him, no. She just saw him coming while she held the door open for the boy. And then, a few minutes after the boy had driven off, she saw Mr. Deane crossing the campus toward the Horseshoe, on his way home. But that doesn't mean a thing. Everybody who lives out here has to pass along the back of that residence to get home. Deane passed there almost exactly at the same time every day."

Forrester filled his pipe. "Does the butcher boy call at the same time every day?"

"Approximately."

Forrester lit the pipe carefully and smoked for a moment in silence. "You've had the body of the dog analyzed? There might be reaction to the poison."

"There's none in the body of Jethro's cat. As for the dog . . . Michael got up and sauntered to the door. "Do you suppose dogs have souls? Freddie must have one. Because he's walked. I tried to dig him up just an hour or two after we buried him. Freddie had gone."

Sunday dawned bright and clear and warm, a perfect day for a tea party in the garden. Tuck had the wicker tea table set out of the sun on the east side of the house, facing Miss Lissey's.

Whether the Devoes and Mrs. Murchison would accept Tuck's invitation had been rather a matter for speculation. It seemed scarcely possible that they would after Jared Devoe's elaborately constructed alibi for them, and considering the fact that Tuck was violating one of society's rules in inviting them when they had not called upon her. But in spite of everything, they came, at four o'clock—almost promptly, Tuck thought. Mrs. Murchison had gowned herself in red . . . a color quite inappropriate for Sunday afternoon in the garden but Mrs. Murchison obviously was not thinking of the garden.

Her eyes flashed at Michael as she shook hands with him, and Tuck got a sudden shock, a sudden insight into the woman's mind. Did she think that her smile might accomplish what Devoe's disarming manner had failed to do? Tuck stiffened mentally.

"We're so glad you could come, Mrs. Murchison," she said sweetly. "We have been looking forward to coming," the red lips said, just as sweetly. The eyes were so dark it was difficult to read any expression in them.

Subjects for Conversation
Mrs. Devoe stood behind her. She looked ill. Her eyes were heavy and lusterless, and the flesh on her cheeks hung flabby and pendulous as if she had suddenly lost weight. She was in black again, a heavy shapeless black, that somehow seemed more sinister than the red. Tuck shook herself.

"It's a lovely day, Mrs. Devoe."

"Yes." Her hand was limp—limp and cold.

"I think you'll find this chair comfortable," Michael said as he greeted her. She sank into it without a word of thanks, and sat there all afternoon as inscrutable as any Buddha. Inscrutable, but never unnoticing. Her heavy eyes saw every movement.

Her son was as affable and polished as ever. He complimented Tuck on the condition of the garden, and moved on to Bunny with suspicious haste. Bunny sat quietly in her chair, and let him talk into her ear without evincing the slightest interest in what he was saying.

Mrs. Murchison and Michael drifted together. Tuck caught one gray amused glance from Bunny, and turned resolutely back to old Mrs. Devoe. She picked a subject out of the air at random, as one reaches for a mosquito on a hot summer night.

"Have you seen our lovely sundial?" she asked. "I suppose you must have when your niece lived here."

The heavy lids fluttered for the merest instant, and the eyes turned toward Tuck. "My niece?"

Devoe broke in. "It was the sundial she spoke of, mother," he said with a swift glance that Tuck caught.

"The sundial. Yes. Yes, I have seen it."

"I never owned a sundial before. They're so romantic, aren't they?"

Mrs. Devoe did not answer, and Tuck was casting about wildly for another subject when she saw with relief Miss Lissey, smart in a flowered chiffon, coming hastily down the outer path. Tuck almost liked Alix Lissey at the moment. Certainly, she told herself, there would be no more of these awkward pauses in the conversation. Then she remembered what Dr. McBain had told Michael about the Devoe-Lissey contretemps, and groaned inwardly. That would probably stop even Alix Lissey's agile tongue. But other than a slight raising of her chin Miss Lissey showed in no way her disapproval at Devoe, and Devoe was very polite, if a trifle distant, with Miss Lissey—so affairs moved rather more smoothly than might have been expected.

But the afternoon was fated not to go smoothly; not with the ease and lack of restraint that had characterized Mrs. Deane's party. It may have been the fact that the Forresters and Bunny . . . and Dr. McBain too, when he finally arrived, . . . were putting every movement, every word, under a strong microscope, that put the tension into the atmosphere. Not only that, but Tuck had a feeling that everyone, excepting perhaps Mrs. Deane and Mrs. McBain, was conscious of this. There was apprehension, wonder, mystery, even fear in the air. No conversation seemed able to live.

Tuck decided mentally that it was no use to keep to harmless subjects. With an air of utter innocence she introduced one, that might have a sting . . . of which she, of course, couldn't be expected to know. The servant problem.

"We were told that it was very difficult to keep a maid out here," she commented. "But, luckily, Charlotte Jean likes it very much, and hasn't any notion of leaving us. I'm very thankful."

Mrs. Deane, hot and puffing as usual spoke. "I have always a perfectly terrible time with servants. I always think my boy Gordon just might have something to do with it. He's very trying, at least we find him so, even ourselves. Really I don't know what to do about it, so I rarely try to keep a maid at all."

There was a curiously furtive look in Marie Murchison's eyes. She glanced at Tuck with a little frown, then looked immediately away.

"Well, I have an old country girl, and I couldn't get along without her," Miss Lissey said. "She's hard working and sensible, and she hasn't any of the silly notions of servants."

Tammany Triumph
A Tammany triumph in county races in New York City marked a change of sentiment in the metropolis, where the organization had been losing in recent years.

New York republicans were victorious, however, in an upstate congressional race. Edwin Arthur Hall, republican, defeated John V. Johnson, democrat and American labor party, in a contest to succeed the late Representative Lord (R-NY).

In Pennsylvania, Boies Penrose, second, republican trailed John E. Sheridan, democrat, for the unexpected term in congress of Representative Daly (D-Pa.). Penrose is a nephew of the late Senator Boies Penrose.

In South Carolina Mrs. Thomas S. McMillan held a long lead in the race to succeed her late husband, Representative McMillan (D-SC). The house now has only four women members.

The only statewide issue in New York's election was the proposal to permit machine waging at the five horse race tracks in the state. Heretofore, such waging has been placed with bookmakers. The vote favoring pari-mutuels was better than two to one.

Mayors were chosen in many cities, legislators named in some states, and a host of county and township officials selected. For the most part, local issues were dominant, but leaders of both parties scanned results for some inkling of the country's attitude in the 1940 contests.

New Detroit Mayor
Detroit chose a new mayor in a non-partisan election, naming Edward J. Jeffries, president of the common council, over the incumbent, Richard W. Reading. The latter won two years ago over active C.I.O. opposition.

Cleveland gave Mayor Harold H. Burton, republican, his third consecutive term. Burton defeated another republican, John E. O'Donnell, and friends believe that next year he may seek the senate seat held by Vic Donahey, democrat.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi, of San Francisco, won a third four-year term in a non-partisan election. He won over a field of seven, including Rep. Frank R. Havenner, new deal supporter in congress.

Socialist Jasper McLevy polled more votes than his three rivals combined to win a fourth term as mayor of Bridgeport, Connecticut.

Repentant Repeater
York, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP).—A 28-year-old negro arraigned in police court for the 28th time won leniency with a plea to leave York so he could earn money to have his head "extrated" from his clerk to help the negro on his way.

The California returns buried the "ham and eggs" pension program by a tremendous margin, but there, too, sponsors said a further fight was planned. The proposition would have paid the unemployed past 50 up to $30 a week, and would have been financed by a system of state script.

The proposal trailed in every county, even Los Angeles county—its birthplace—turning in almost a 2-to-1 total against it.

Pension leaders declared they would start a recall movement against Gov. Culbert L. Olson, who fought the plan. They contended he had been elected by "ham and eggs" last year.

Olson said the plan's defeat would help his administration plan, the employment of "all persons willing and able to work at useful and productive employment."

Voters' interest centered on contests for public office in the other states where elections were held.

In Kentucky, Governor Keen Johnson, democrat, was elected to the office he reached through the recent resignation of Gov. A. B. Chandler, who entered the senate. His republican opponent was Circuit Judge King Swope.

G.O.P. WINS FOUR PLACES ON HIGH COURTS IN STATE

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Pennsylvania republicans, holding old ground and making some gains in Tuesday's "off-year" election, beat down a democratic-fusion attempt to wrest control of Philadelphia and swept statewide races, nearly complete returns showed today.

Jubilantly, state republican Chairman James Tarrance declared:

"When Pennsylvanians voted republican (after four years of democratic state rule) last year, they meant it. The victory points unmistakably to a republican landslide in Pennsylvania next year for the party presidential nominee."

Republicans elected the mayor in Philadelphia as they have done every time since 1881, achieved numerous local party victories in communities throughout the state and saw their candidates triumph in the only state-wide contests—for one state Supreme court seat and three places on the Superior court.

G.O.P. Senate Majority
Republicans apparently clinched a constitutional majority in the Pennsylvania senate through elections called to fill two vacancies. Before Tuesday's balloting the senate lineup was 25 republicans and 23 democrats.

Complete unofficial Philadelphia returns gave strapping 200-pound Robert E. Lamberton, republican, 390,488 votes to 359,989 for city Controller Robert C. White for mayor of the nation's third largest city after a hard-fought campaign that revolved around democratic charges of city mismanagement.

A democrat, John E. Sheridan, defeated republican Boies Penrose, second, nephew of the late United States senator, in a contest for the unexpired term of the late J. Burrwood Daily, United States representative from the fourth Pennsylvania district. The vote was 51,152 to 47,654.

In the one Pennsylvania Supreme court race, returns from 5,535 of the state's 8,085 election districts gave Marion D. Patterson, judge of the Blair county courts since 1927, a lead of 1,191,539 to 929,486 over Herbert P. Goodrich, dean of the University of Pennsylvania law school. Judge Patterson will fill the vacancy which will result from the retirement of Chief Justice John W. Kephart. Election is for a term of 21 years.

Kephart's Son Wins
The 34-year-old son of Justice Kephart, A. Evans Kephart, won one of the state senate seats at issue, defeating Mrs. Ada H. Lewis, democrat, in the second Philadelphia district. The vote was Kephart 24,770, Lewis 19,045.

In the other state senate election, called to fill a vacancy caused by the retirement of Dr. P. J. Henney, Pittsburgh, democrat, who preferred to continue as county coroner, republican James G. Fulton led democrat John Fremont Cox in the 49th Allegheny district with returns incomplete.

With William H. Keller, 70, of Lancaster, nominated on both tickets, two seats were at issue Tuesday in the state Superior court races. Incomplete returns gave republicans in excess of 200,000 to William E. Hart, of Erie, and Thomas J. Baldridge, of Hollidaysburg, republicans. The democratic candidates were Edward J. Thompson, Philadelphia, and J. Harold Flannery, of Pittston. Pledges Co-operation

Quick to concede, as earliest Philadelphia returns indicated Philadelphia was going republican again as it has in every city election for 55 years, was city Democratic Chairman John B. Kelly.

Controller White, who now will serve under the man—Judge Lamberton—he fought for mayor, pledged his "fullest co-operation."

Republican observers were quick to point out that Judge Lamberton's vote over Controller White indicated party gains even since the election of 1938 in which republicans returned to power in Pennsylvania.

The unofficial plurality for Judge Lamberton was 30,499. This was contrasted with the vote given Arthur H. James for governor in 1938 in Philadelphia—417,050 to 407,361 for his democratic opponent; a plurality of less than 10,000.

In the state at large, it also was pointed out, Judge Patterson appeared likely to beat Dean Goodrich for the Supreme court by a plurality in excess of the 280,000 votes run by up Governor James I. East year when he won the governorship by a vote of 2,035,344 to 1,755,284.

With Philadelphia traditionally republican, democratic leaders indicated they regarded the vote here as of little significance.

The republican victory extended to many of Pennsylvania's lesser cities and in county judgeship contests. The party filled most of the judgeships up for decisions in 30 counties. Among them was the Fayette county, post that Judge John S. Morrow, appointee of Governor Arthur H. James, defended against State Senator Anthony J. Cavalcante, democrat, who contended he had the support of the United Mine Workers in the soft-coal county.

Celebrate in Philadelphia
Advocates of the "open Sunday" claimed some gains in local referenda. Five Tioga county towns voted to legalize Sunday movies that they had been permitting until church folk protested. Seven towns voted on Sunday movies; five on Sunday sports.

Despite the turn of the vote, Philadelphia democrats doubled their strength in council—from one seat to two. The pre-election council lineup was 21 republicans and one democrat. Now it's to be 20 to two.

Republicans swarmed about city hall, in central city, in a whooping, dancing throng that celebrated until long after midnight. One newspaper fired its "victory gun." A band or two showed up. Car horns blared.

A lawyer, Lamberton entered politics in 1914 when he managed Clifford Pinchot's campaign against the late Senator Boies Penrose in his home ward. A year later Lamberton was elected as an independent republican to city council and was re-elected in 1917.

In 1919 Lamberton was elected sheriff of Philadelphia county. He resumed law practice after a four-year term. He was appointed to the common pleas bench in 1931.

Born at South Bethlehem, Pa., the son of a Lehigh university professor, he was brought to Philadelphia at the age of three and was educated here. He distinguished himself in football at the University of Pennsylvania.

In January, Lamberton will succeed acting Mayor George Connell, who stepped from the presidency of city council when Mayor S. Davis Wilson resigned because of illness months ago. Wilson died a few weeks after he stepped down.

STOCK REPORT
New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The stock market marched down hill today but climbed part of the way back again after the first flurry of selling. At their worst, shortly after the moderately active opening, leaders had lost fractions to around two points. Near noon they had recovered about half the ground lost.

JAILED FOR LIFE

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Samuel Sortino, 36-year-old defendant in Philadelphia's mass murders for insurance, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for complicity in the drowning five years ago of Raffaele Caruso. He was the third to be sentenced of 13 persons who have pleaded guilty or have been convicted.

G.O.P. WINS FOUR PLACES ON HIGH COURTS IN STATE

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Pennsylvania republicans, holding old ground and making some gains in Tuesday's "off-year" election, beat down a democratic-fusion attempt to wrest control of Philadelphia and swept statewide races, nearly complete returns showed today.

Jubilantly, state republican Chairman James Torrance declared:

"When Pennsylvanians voted republican (after four years of democratic state rule) last year, they meant it. The victory points unmistakably to a republican landslide in Pennsylvania next year for the party presidential nominee."

Republicans elected the mayor in Philadelphia as they have done every time since 1881, achieved numerous local party victories in communities throughout the state and saw their candidates triumph in the only state-wide contests—for one state Supreme court seat and three places on the Superior court.

G.O.P. Senate Majority
Republicans apparently clinched a constitutional majority in the Pennsylvania senate through elections called to fill two vacancies. Before Tuesday's balloting the senate lineup was 25 republicans and 23 democrats.

Complete unofficial Philadelphia returns gave strapping 200-pound Robert E. Lamberton, republican, 390,488 votes to 359,989 for city Controller Robert C. White for mayor of the nation's third largest city after a hard-fought campaign that revolved around democratic charges of city mismanagement.

A democrat, John E. Sheridan, defeated republican Boies Penrose, second, nephew of the late United States senator, in a contest for the unexpired term of the late J. Burwood Daily, United States representative from the fourth Pennsylvania district. The vote was 51,152 to 47,654.

In the one Pennsylvania Supreme court race, returns from 5,535 of the state's 8,085 election districts gave Marion D. Patterson, judge of the Blair county courts since 1927, a lead of 1,191,539 to 929,496 over Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the University of Pennsylvania law school.

Judge Patterson will fill the vacancy which will result from the retirement of Chief Justice John W. Kephart. Election is for a term of 21 years.

Kephart's Son Wins
The 34-year-old son of Justice Kephart, A. Evans Kephart, won one of the state senate seats at issue, defeating Mrs. Ada H. Lewis, democrat, in the second Philadelphia district. The vote was Kephart 24,770; Lewis 19,045.

In the other state senate election, called to fill a vacancy caused by the retirement of Dr. P. J. Henney, Pittsburgh democrat, who preferred to continue as county coroner, republican James G. Fulton led democrat John Fremont Cox in the 49th Allegheny district with returns incomplete.

With William H. Keller, 70, of Lancaster, nominated on both tickets, two seats were at issue Tuesday in the state Superior court races. Incomplete returns gave republicans in excess of 200,000 to William E. Hirt, of Erie, and Thomas J. Baldrige, of Hollidaysburg, republicans. The democratic candidates were Edward J. Thompson, Phillipsburg, and J. Harold Flannery, of Pittston.

Pledges Co-Operation
Quick to concede, as earliest Philadelphia returns indicated Philadelphia was going republican again as it has in every city election for 55 years, was city Democratic Chairman John B. Kelly.

Controller White, who now will serve under the man — Judge Lamberton — he fought for mayor, pledged his "fullest co-operation."

Republican observers were quick to point out that Judge Lamberton's vote over Controller White indicated party gains even since the election of 1938 in which republicans returned to power in Pennsylvania.

The unofficial plurality for Judge Lamberton was 30,499. This was contrasted with the vote given Arthur H. James for governor in 1938 in Philadelphia — 417,050 to 407,361 for his democratic opponent; a plurality of less than 10,000.

In the state at large, it also was pointed out, Judge Patterson appeared likely to beat Dean Goodrich for the Supreme court by a plurality in excess of the 280,000 votes run by up Governor James last year when he won the governorship by a vote of 2,035,344 to 1,755,284.

With Philadelphia traditionally republican, democratic leaders indicated they regarded the vote here as of little significance.

The republican victory extended to many of Pennsylvania's lesser cities and in county judgeship contests. The party filled most of the judgeships up for decisions in 30 counties. Among them was the Fayette county, post that Judge John S. Morrow, appointee of Governor Arthur H. James, defended against State Senator Anthony J. Cavalcante, democrat, who contended he had the support of the United Mine Workers in the soft-coal county.

Celebrate in Philadelphia

Advocates of the "open Sunday" claimed some gains in local referenda. Five Tioga county towns voted to legalize Sunday movies that they had been permitting until church folk protested. Seven towns voted on Sunday movies; five on Sunday sports.

Despite the turn of the vote, Philadelphia democrats doubled their strength in council—from one seat to two. The pre-election council lineup was 21 republicans and one democrat. Now it's to be 20 to two.

Republicans swarmed about city hall, in central city, in a whooping, dancing throng that celebrated until long after midnight. One newspaper fired its "victory gun." A band or two showed up. Car horns blared.

A lawyer, Lamberton entered politics in 1914 when he managed Gifford Pinchot's campaign against the late Senator Boies Penrose in his home ward. A year later Lamberton was elected as an independent republican to city council and was re-elected in 1917.

In 1919 Lamberton was elected sheriff of Philadelphia county. He resumed law practice after a four-year term. He was appointed to the common pleas bench in 1931.

Born at South Bethlehem, Pa., the son of a Lehigh university professor, he was brought to Philadelphia at the age of three and was educated here. He distinguished himself in football at the University of Pennsylvania.

In January, Lamberton will succeed acting Mayor George Connell who stepped from the presidency of city council when Mayor S. Davis Wilson resigned because of illness months ago. Wilson died a few weeks after he stepped down.

STOCK REPORT
New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The stock market marched down hill today but climbed part of the way back again after the first flurry of selling. At their worst, shortly after the moderately active opening, leaders had lost fractions to around two points. Near noon they had recovered about half the ground lost.

JAILED FOR LIFE

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—Samuel Sortino, 36-year-old defendant in Philadelphia's mass murders for insurance, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for complicity in the drowning five years ago of Raffaele Caruso. He was the third to be sentenced of 13 persons who have pleaded guilty or have been convicted.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Local Talent Show a Success: With live dolls dancing through two hours of entertainment, "Pi Pi of Top Shop" delighted a large audience at Walter's Theatre on evening.

Appropriate opening of the annual Rudisill sang "Baby" at the moment later Genevieve was wandering through a maze. Gilbert Becker, as usual, sings to her.

Edwin Ring, as Pi Pi, had read and played and sang in a most acceptable manner. Lillian Krimmiller was the colored doll, Lucille Bender the rag doll, and Jacob Rudisill, Donald Keeler and Mr.
Simmons, of college, had other leading doll parts. Miss Helen Pfeiffer sang for several of the choruses.

Miss Katherine Duncan and Lloyd Schnauffer gave a demonstration of the "Maxixe."

Miss Amy Swope, first as the witch and then as the fairy, Lawrence Sneads as the old toymaker, and William Duncan and William Troxell, the clowns, were all most acceptable.

The entertainment was given for the benefit of the Kurtz playground fund and realized $85.00. To Miss Frances Fritchey is due the credit of the management of the entire affair, her club of young girls, "The Gettysburg Camp Fire" of Jenny Wells, being the organization under whose auspices it was given.

Miss Minnie Lohr, pianist for the evening, deserves special mention.

Culp—Kraft: Cletus R. Culp and Miss Laura M. Kraft, both of Men-den township, were married Friday evening in the office of Clerk of the County Olinger by Squire Harbush.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kraft. Mr. Culp is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Culp, with whom they will reside for the present.

Society Elects: The Choral Society
Thursday evening elected Prof.
C. Kirby, president; Rev. F. E.
Taylor, vice president; Miss Grace Sachs, secretary; and I. L. Taylor, treasurer; and Miss Minnie Lohr, pianist.

Beates Goes to Congress: C. William Beates, of Gettysburg, is elected to represent the Twentieth Congressional District. The unofficial total for the entire county shows that he has a plurality here of 428 votes, latest returns from York county show that he has triumphed over Brodbeck there by about 400.

Brunbaugh (for Governor) carried the State with Penrose (for United States Senate) by an overwhelming majority.

Calvin Rudisill is again elected representative Adams County in the Legislature, having a substantial lead over Mr. Breum, the Republican candidate.

County Licenses: Clerk of the County has issued marriage licenses to the following:

William V. Klunk, son of H. V.
Klunk, and Catherine J. Gebhart, of Adams township.

Howard J. Bowling, son of John
S. Bowling, and Fannie G. Rose, daughter of Joseph Rose, both of Adams township.

Eddie Plank Gets Release: The news of the release by the Athletics, of Eddie Plank, Gettysburg's baseball pride, came as a great surprise to his scores of friends here Saturday evening who could scarcely believe that Connie Mack would let go the man who has worked for him since 1901, winning many pennants, and always dependable when others failed. With Plank go Bender and Combs, two other men who served Mack well.

Party for Rebecca: Gettysburg Lodge, Daughters of Rebecca, were guests Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Goehenour in Bendersville.

The following members of the Gettysburg Lodge were present: Mrs.
Samuel Weiser, Mrs. R. H. Bushman, Mrs. Ralph Wierman, Mrs. L.
L. Sheade, Miss Jennie Weaver, Mrs.

J. I. Mumper, Mrs. W. D. Holtzworth, Mrs. S. D. Welkert, Mrs.

EDGAR A. GUEST

BOYHOOD REMINISCENCE
One cold October day at Port Austin where we stay

For the summer I went calling on the druggist of the town.

When I questioned "where is he?"
Mrs. Pittwood said to me:

"Jack is putting up the stove which last springtime he took down."

Since the time I was a lad, I'd forgotten people had

Such a grim and dismal duty
every autumn to perform

So I said: "I'll wander back and just take a look at Jack

At his annual performance to make sure of keeping warm."

There he stood, as once stood dad, and the self-same look he had

As he held two lengths of stove pipe which refused to join at all.

And I'll swear from head to foot he was smeared with last year's soot

Just as always was my father at that duty every fall.

And I chuckled as I heard him repeat the very word

Which my father used to mutter as he tink the pipes he strove.

And I'd vow I thought that day I could hear my mother say:

"Son, you mustn't watch your father when he's putting up the stove."

WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE

Oklahoma City (AP)—Frank S.
Smith, former G-man and Oklahoma City's new chief of police, was caught in a traffic jam and looked around for traffic officers on duty in that block.

"Finally I saw them standing on a corner talking with both hands," said the chief.

Persistent honking of the automobile horn failed to distract them from their argument before the jam finally broke and the chief's car moved on. Later he summoned the two eloquent officers.

"What," said the chief, "were you arguing about?"

"We were discussing ways and means of improving Oklahoma City traffic conditions," said they.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

A BOOK FROM SOMEWHERE

ONE fine thing about having a habit of book is that you accumulate so many that remain strangers to you, so that at most any moment you are given the pleasant surprise of a book friend who has been in your midst for a long time—like finding a thrilling human friend a thousand miles from home who proves to be your next door neighbor!

Well, I was lonely of an evening recently, and delved into book after book for that unusual solace that comes to one from a silent voice between its covers. Finally I came across a stranger that attracted my attention by its title—"How to be Happy on Nothing a Year," by a man who lives in Greenville, South Carolina, and who is greatly beloved there because of his kindly and unselfish character. His name is Charles A. David and he was at one time a cartoonist for the Greenville News. Now I am sorry I did not meet him on my many visits to that town.

"No one," says the gentleman who introduces the book, "now living in Greenville, South Carolina, can recall the time when Mr. David was not a character there. He was born to fit into the life of a friendly community, and to make it more friendly." That tribute is something to make one justly proud.

I have no idea where this book came from. It nestled among dozens in my library. Perhaps the publishers sent it to me, or someone gave it to me—or maybe, it just happened where I found it! Anyway, what a joy, what a delight of a book. Simply, honestly, humanly, and humorously written by a man who couldn't make anyone dislike him if one tried. He boasts no wealth, owns very little, is so modest that he shrinks from the smallest publicity, and yet everyone loves him and he himself says that he is one of the happiest human beings alive. The secret being that he devotes all his time to making others happy.

I confess, however, that I have read few books that have given me greater joy or inspired me more to be just the sort of a man that David exemplified himself to be. His simple life of service, his love of nature and outdoor beauty, is told by him in his book in a manner that amounts also to genius. Perhaps it is genius.

And to think that this charming book had to wait six years before I found it out. I might have died before drinking in its beauty! I am glad that I still live to tell others about it.

Chapter 23
Garden Party

It was Saturday afternoon before the Sunday of Tuck's garden party.
Michael sat on the edge of his father's desk, swinging his legs, and looking gloomily over the drab city roofs visible through the open window. His father sat at the big desk, whistling tunelessly between his teeth.

Michael had been talking. He went on with his story.

"So I tried to figure it out," he said. "It seemed to me that there must be some reason why it should be the meat that he . . . to use Gordon's term . . . chose to poison."

"You just got through saying it wasn't poisoned," his father said sharply.

Michael glanced at him. "Perhaps I did," he said mildly. "But of course it was. The dog died. The cat died. What Jethro meant was that it wasn't poisoned with anything he knew anything about.

With anything that had any known reaction. But we should have died very suddenly if we had eaten that meat."

"You're moving immediately?"
"No. We're not moving."

"You've got to, lad."

"No. It's too late. It wouldn't do any good to move. He doesn't know how much we know, you see. We're on our guard now. Watching . . . at least I am. The girls don't know of course. They think the dog had bit him. They're doing."

John Forrester compressed his lips. "You're the only boy I've got,"
he said shortly.

"Always thinking of yourself, aren't you?" Michael said reproachfully.

The District Attorney placed Michael in a cage.

"As I was saying," he went on,
"I wondered why it was the meat and not the soup of the pudding.
Or the bread. And I found out."

"Why then?"

"Well, you see, it's this way. The butcher boy came without the meat.
He left the shop with it—he was sure. Anyway, I phoned the butcher, and asked. So we came to the conclusion that the meat was intercepted on the way. Why the meat?

Because, my well beloved father, the groceries and all the rest of the supplies come from the city, direct to our door; while the butcher is on this side of town, and invariably sends the meat supply to the University first. The boy stops his cart there at the back door of the residences, and carries in armloads of supplies. And, while he is carrying in armloads of supplies the meat for the Horseshoe is . . . where? It should be reposing peacefully in the cart, waiting to be taken for a further ride."

"Well?"

"Well, it wasn't."

"Where was it?"

Michael took an envelope from his pocket. From it he drew a square of butcher's paper. In the center of it was a hole, a neat round hole that might have been punched out with a lead pencil, save that it bore no pencil marks. Michael held it up.

Animal Souls

"You see that hole?"

"Of course."

"Syringe," said Michael laconically.

"Syringe?"

"Well, hypodermic. Clever. Gaseous poison that leaves no trace.
Hypodermic so that he doesn't have to untie the parcel. I don't think our friend intended to take the parcel from the cart, no. But he'd scarcely dare stand there too long, even in the covered areaway where ed as ever. He complimented Tuck on the condition of the garden, and moved on to Bunny with suspicious haste. Bunny sat quietly in her chair, and let him talk into her ear without evincing the slightest interest in what he was saying.

Mrs. Murchison and Michael drifted together. Tuck caught one gray amused glance from Bunny, and turned resolutely back to old Mrs.
Devoe. She picked a subject out of the air at random, as one reaches for a mosquito on a hot summer night.

"Have you seen our lovely sundial?" she asked. "I suppose you must have when your niece lived here."

The heavy lids fluttered for the moment instant, and the eyes turned toward Tuck. "My niece?"

Devoe broke in. "It was the sundial she spoke of, mother," he said with a swift glance that Tuck caught.

"The sundial. Yes. Yes, I have seen it."

"I never owned a sundial before.
They're so romantic, aren't they?"

Mrs. Devoe did not answer, and Tuck was casting about wildly for another subject when she saw with relief Miss Lissey, smart in a flowered chiffon, coming hastily down the outer path. Tuck almost liked Alix Lissey at the moment. Certainly, she told herself, there would be no more of these awkward pauses in the conversation. Then she remembered what Dr. McBain had told Michael about the Devoe-Lissey controversy, and groaned inwardly.

That would probably stop even Alix Lissey's agile tongue. But other than a slight raising of her chin Miss Lissey showed in no way her displeasure at Devoe, and Devoe was very polite. If a trifle distant, with Miss Lissey, so affairs moved rather more smoothly than might have been expected.

But the afternoon was fated not to go smoothly; not with the ease and lack of restraint that had characterized Mrs. Deane's party. It may have been the fact that the Forresters and Bunny . . . and Dr.
McBain too, when he finally arrived,
. . . were putting every movement,
every word, under a strong microscope, that put the tension into the atmosphere. Not only that, but Tuck had a feeling that everyone, excepting perhaps Mrs. Deane and Mrs. McBain, was conscious of this.
There was apprehension, wonder, mystery, even fear in the air. No conversation seemed able to live.

Tuck decided mentally that it was no use to keep to harmless subjects. With an air of utter innocence she introduced one, that might have a sting . . . of which she,
of course, couldn't be expected to know.
The servant problem.

"We were told that it was very difficult to keep a maid out here," she commented. "But, luckily, Charlotte Jean likes it very much, and hasn't any notion of leaving us. I'm very thankful."

Mrs. Deane, hot and puffing as usual, spoke. "I have always a perfectly terrible time with servants.
I always think my boy Gordon just might have something to do with it.
He's very trying, at least we find him so, even ourselves. Really I don't know what to do about it, so I rarely try to keep a maid at all."

There was a curiously furtive look in Marie Murchison's eyes. She glanced at Tuck with a little frown, then looked immediately away.

"Well, I have an old country girl, and I couldn't get along without her," Miss Lissey said. "She's hard working and sensible, and she hasn't any of the silly notions of servants in this country. She belongs to the servant class, and she knows it, and she stays where she belongs."

"Is there a servant class, Miss Lissey?" Bunny asked.

"Of course there is. Some people are born to be ladies' maids just as some aren't. Let them keep to their own levels. I say. It's no use their trying to pretend they belong to another class." She tossed her head angrily, and the red flamed in her cheek.

PENSION PLANS ARE DEFEATED
IN TWO STATES

(By the Associated Press)

Pension plans combining increased grants to the aged with unorthodox methods of raising the money were rejected Tuesday by top-heavy majorities in California and Ohio.

In other off-year elections, New York voters sanctioned pari-mutuel race betting and gave Tammany control of county jobs, while Kentucky chose a democratic governor.
None of the contests for office held nationwide political significance.

Ohio ballots showed under the pension proposal advocated by Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati clergyman, to assure income of $50 a month to those past 60. The plan, which called for a state income tax and a levy on valuable real estate, was defeated by a margin of more than 3 to 1.

Opponents contended that the vote showed Ohio "would not be deluded by suggestions of this kind," but Bigelow announced a new proposal even before all the ballots killing the old one were counted.

To Continue Fight

"I will continue the fight until we win," the 69-year-old preacher-politician said, adding that he would try to put a variant of the rejected plan before the voters next year.

The California returns buried the "ham and eggs" pension program by a tremendous margin, but there too, sponsors said a further fight was planned. The proposition would have paid the unemployed past 50 up to $30 a week, and would have been financed by a system of state scrip.

The proposal trailed in every county, even Los Angeles county—its birthplace—turning in almost a 2-to-1 total against it.

Pension leaders declared they would start a recall movement against Gov. Culbert L. Olson, who fought the plan. They contended he had been elected by "ham and eggs" last year.

Olson said the plan's defeat would help his administration plan, the employment of "all persons willing and able to work at useful and productive employment."

Voters' interest centered on contests for public office in the other states where elections were held.

In Kentucky, Governor Keen Johnson, democrat, was elected to the office he reached through the recent resignation of Gov. A. B.
Chandler, who entered the senate.
His republican opponent was Circleville Judge King Swope.

Tammany Triumph

A Tammany triumph in county places in New York city marked a change of sentiment in the metropolis, where the organization had been losing in recent years.

New York republicans were victorious, however, in an upstate congressional race. Edwin Arthur Hall, republican, defeated John V. Johnson, democrat and American labor party, in a contest to succeed the late Representative Lord (R-N.Y.).

In Pennsylvania, Boies Penrose, second, republican trailed John E.
Sheridan, democrat, for the unexpected term in congress of Representative Daly (D-Pa). Penrose is a nephew of the late Senator Boies Penrose.

In South Carolina Mrs. Thomas
S. McMillan held a long lead in the race to succeed her late husband, Representative McMillan (D-SC).
The house now has only four women members.

The only statewide issue in New York's election was the proposal to permit machine waging at the five horse race tracks in the state.
Heretofore, such waging has been placed with bookmakers. The vote favoring pari-mutuels was better than two to one.

Mayors were chosen in many cities,
legislators named in some states,
and a host of county and township officials selected. For the most part, local issues were dominant, but leaders of both parties scanned results for some inkling of the country's attitude in the Farm Calendar

Timely Reminders for Adams County Farmers From State College Specialists.

Don't worry about the many bugs that may try to enter your home now that the weather has made life uncomfortable for them outdoors. They're looking for a place to hibernate for the winter, entomologists explain.

Storing Vegetables

Because stored vegetables deteriorate rapidly at a warm temperature, it is advisable to adjust the ventilation of the storage room so that cold air can be let in at night and the room kept cool during the day by closing windows and doors, say vegetable experts.

Controlling Plant Diseases

Destruction of plant refuse this fall will lessen the disease problem next year, according to plant pathologists. Plant diseases are caused by the growth of fungi and bacteria which live in or on green plants. They pass the winter in old stems and leaves.

Conditions for Apple Storage

Careful control of relative humidity, keeping it at approximately 85 per cent with the temperature near freezing, will prevent shriveling, fruit specialists have found. Even slight shriveling of the fruit will indicate the need for sprinkling floors and walls frequently.

Don't Mix Your Milk

In winter, as in summer, never mix warm milk with some that has already been cooled, warn dairymen. If the night milk is held over for morning delivery, the morning milk must be properly cooled before the two can be mixed safely.

Insulating Walls

A 3/4-inch air space in walls gives maximum insulation for air spaces and is equivalent to about 3 1/2-inch of average insulating materials, according to agricultural engineers. The insulating value of wide air spaces can be increased by partitioning them into two or more spaces.

FIRE BUT FALSE
Scranton, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—The flames were high, the fire was big—but it was still a false alarm as far as the fire department was concerned. Two cars of the Laurel line were being purposely destroyed near the power house when someone not "in the know" saw the blaze and turned in an alarm.

SKUNKS IN SIDE SHOW
Reading, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—Among the attractions at the Southwest junior high school circus will be baby skunks. It's all right, folks, they've been deodorized.

CANDIDATE SURPRISED

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Irvin J. Hiney was jolted by a terrific election day surprise. He entered a voting booth thinking he was the democratic nominee for ward assessor—but found his primary opponent listed. A 100-vote error in tabulation explained the mixup.

BONNEAUVILLE

Bonneauville.—The banns of matrimony were published for the first time Sunday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church between Cyril J. Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Weaver, near Bonneauville, and Bernadette Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brady, of McSherrystown. The wedding will be held in St. Mary's Catholic Church, McSherrystown on Thursday, November 23.

The monthly meeting of the N. C. C. W. parish unit was held Monday evening in the parish hall with 39 members in attendance. The vice-president, Mrs. Guy Sanders, presided. Routine business was transacted and part of the encyclical letter by Pope Pius XII was read by Theresa Golden. Father Krichen spoke briefly on the works of the organization and announced plans for holding Sunday movies in the parish hall. After adjournment refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Evelyn Chrimer, assisted by Misses Theresa Golden and Lee Strasbaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. John Staub, Baltimore, spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Staub.

Mrs. Ida Troutman and daughter, Marie, York, visited Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Linus Smith.

Miss Mary Frommeyer, New York city, spent last week with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Frommeyer.

Charles Henry, Hanover, spent a few days last week with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Staub.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Golden, Misses Anna and Theresa Golden, spent Thursday in Lester with Mr. and Mrs. William Golden.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lampert, and son, Joseph, and grandson, Frank, Baltimore, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paynter.

COMPLETE INFORMATION, TO SAY THE LEAST

Waco, Tex., (AP)—It takes more than intelligence to make a good employee, Baylor university officials have decided.

There's a confidential file in the administration office. In the file are estimates, by professors, of students' honesty, initiative, reliability, personality, emotional stability and capacity to cooperate.

When a prospective employer writes to inquire about an ex-Baylorite who seeks a job the university sends him not only the student's academic record but the confidential appraisal of his personal qualities.

Want to Feel like a Big Shot?

WHAT we mean is, how'd you like to feel like you used to think a big shot must feel, cruising along in his big brawny Buick, envy of every youngster in town?

Fact is, a big brawny Buick — this year's beauty of a Buick — is within your reach right now.

A husky headlong 107-horsepowered giant valve-in-head straight-eight can be yours to command—you can roll around town in the staunch and steady carriage that's sure big, beautiful and a bearcat in action when its boss gives the word!

Yes, you can ride in the

The U.S.A. still celebrates ARMISTICE DAY!

In the United States, we still celebrate Armistice Day; we Americans have not forgotten the costly lesson of twenty-five years ago.

No time could be more appropriate to re-new determination to keep our heads and keep peace and to make sure that in the years to come, Armistice Day will continue to be celebrated as the beginning of Permanent Peace for the United States of America.

In observance of Armistice Day, this bank will transact no business on Saturday, November 11, 1939.

REFUSAL PREDICTED

Paris, Nov. 8 (AP)—An emphatic French "no" to the peace proposal by Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and King Leopold of Belgium was predicted today in unofficial quarters and by the press. Premier Daladier conferred until late Tuesday night at the war ministry, but there was no hint of official reaction to the mediation suggestion.
